BIG JET SET TO DROP TEST H-BOMB

Lausche Says O'Neill Stand Is Ill-Advised

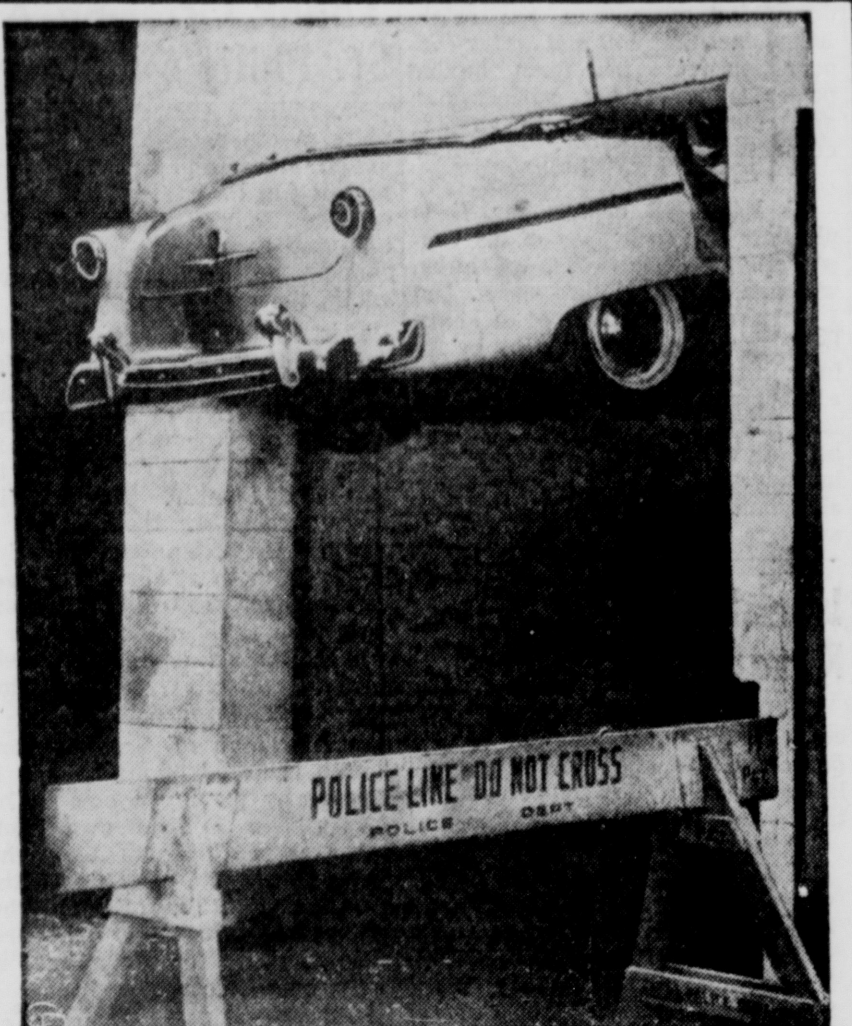

Chief Denies State Too Slow In Selling Bonds For Buildings
COLUMBUS (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche responded sharply last night to charges that his administration has been slow to sell bonds authorized for a multi-million-dollar public building program.

The criticism has come recently from Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

Lausche said O'Neill "was not in possession of the facts. If he were, he would never have made the attack he did."

Zoyd M. Flaler, state public works director, said that selling bonds at this time under the $150 million bond issue authorized by Ohio voters last November would be "a privilege of taxpayers' money."

Flaler said the bond money "will not be needed until after the plans and specifications for buildings under the program have been completed." He added that architects have been hired to prepare plans for $52,864,000 worth of buildings.

Methodist Chiefs Approve Women As Official Pastors

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The Methodist Church today had a new kind of regular ministers—women.

They're now eligible to join the ranks of the official clergy of America's largest Protestant denomination.

The church's law-making General Conference gave its sanction yesterday after hours of turbulent see-saw debate.

It was the climax of years of contention within the church over the fitness of women to serve full-fledged pastoral posts.

After the decision, Dr. Georgia Harkness, a Berkeley, Calif., theological professor who had been in the forefront of the struggle for equal clerical status for women, rose and walked to a microphone.

She said some people had been wondering why she took no part in the final verbal battle.

"The Bible says," she added, "that there is a time to speak and a time to be silent. This was the time for me to be silent."

She smiled and sat down.

BUT FEW OTHERS had been silent in the whirl of proposals and counter-proposals that surged about the subject of women and their qualifications as ministers.

It was a move by Dr. Zach T. Johnson, president of Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., that finally was approved, putting women on par with men in filling the church's 40,000 pulpits.

There had been more than 2,000 varying propositions on the subject filed before the two-week church legislative meeting began.

After culling through these, a committee headed by the Rev. James A. Chubb of Grand Island, Neb., recommended extension of full clerical rights only to "unmarried women and widows."

But the measure that went through included married women, too.

The Rev. J. Dewey Muir of Jacksonville, Ill., led the opposition to any relaxation in the church's restrictions on women ministers.

They make excellent preachers, he agreed, but many churches just don't want them anyway; to put them on the regular roster of ministers would create a serious "problem of administration."

"It would open the way to the appointment of women ministers to any church," he said, "whether they're wanted or not."

Unlike most Protestant churches which "call" the pastors they want, Methodist pastors are assigned by bishops from among regular ministers in each regional conference. All on this list of regular "traveling ministers" are assured pulpits.

Military Giving Up Posts In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Military men are slated to relinquish rule to civilians in three Argentine provinces underscoring the pledge of Juan D. Peron's successors to return the government to civilian control.

The office of Argentina's provisional president, Gen. Pedro Aramburu, said the military administrations of Salta, San Luis and La Rioja provinces will be replaced by civilians.

In the wake of the upheaval which toppled Peron's government last fall, the rebels placed army, navy and air force men in the top positions.

Ike's Health, Nixon's Ethics Under New Democratic Fire

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
President Eisenhower's physical stamina and Vice President Nixon's political ethics came under critical appraisal by national Democratic leaders yesterday.

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler, addressing a mock party convention at the University of Wisconsin, said that Eisenhower "by his own admission, is unable to devote his full energies to the job of President."

Butler's new shaft came about a dozen hours after Eisenhower had assured his news conference in Washington that "the schedule I am now working on, certainly as far as the doctors say, I can continue indefinitely." The President said he might delegate somebody to take action, "but I will take the gaff."

Adlai Stevenson, campaigning near Nixon's home in Southern California, read a formal statement saying Nixon has "poisoned four successive election campaigns." Stevenson said he was referring to 1948 when Nixon won re-election to the House, 1950 when Nixon was chosen for the Senate, 1952 when Nixon campaigned successfully for vice president and 1954 when he took a leading part in the congressional election battles.

Accusing Nixon of showing "manifest irresponsibility," Stevenson said:

"He talks little about the issues. Instead he slanders and impugns the motives, even the loyalty, of those who oppose him and his party. That distasteful technique has worked three times. It did not work in 1954 (when the Democrats regained control of Congress) and it will not work in 1956."

As Stevenson pushed his campaign in California, Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee wound up a five-day swing through north Florida with a blast at administration policies which he said favor big business.

Kefauver, who is opposing Stevenson for the Democratic presidential nomination, said in Jacksonville Beach, that "while meat packers' profits are up, hog and beef prices are down" and that "while profits of the big corporations soar, small business failures are on the upswing."

In Texas, the Donnybrook between Democratic factions for control of the state delegation to the National party convention reached fever pitch yesterday on the eve of more than 4,000 precinct conventions.

Gov. Allan Shivers, the head of one faction, called Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson "vicious, vain and ambitious." Johnson, backed by a rival Democratic group for head of the delegation, charged that if Shivers wins the post the governor would bolt the national convention. In 1952, Shivers supported Eisenhower for the presidency. Texas went Republican that year.

Three Wise Men To Guide NATO

Western Foreign Ministers OK Suggestion Made By Americans

PARIS (AP)—The NATO foreign ministers agreed today to entrust their next moves in the battle of peaceful coexistence to "three wise men."

British sources said the ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council endorsed the proposal at a secret session.

U. S. Secretary of State Dulles made the proposal yesterday in a survey of NATO's future in the political and economic domains, saying the organization should be strengthened in those fields.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd urged the appointment of Canada's Lester B. Pearson, Italy's Gaetano Martino, and Norway's Halvard Lange as the "three wise men" to map out a plan for NATO's development.

They are members of the NATO council.

The major goal would be to win over the uncommitted peoples of Asia, Africa and the Middle East to the Western side.

Earlier, a five-man ministerial committee met to draft a manifesto restating NATO's ideals and objectives for the new era of Soviet smiles and economic blandishment aimed at capturing uncommitted millions in Asia, Africa and the Middle East.

THE MINISTERS acted on the basis of an appeal from Dulles to move toward closer political and economic coordination.

The manifesto was expected to be confined to an expression of determination to meet the new Communist challenge on political and economic fronts.

Indications were that the problem of how to do this would be handed over to a committee of two or three Atlantic pact ministers, with orders to report back to the council in the fall.

That was the suggestion of U. S. Secretary of State Dulles, who urged the NATO members to marshal their resources for a 10-year plan to win over the uncommitted peoples of Asia, Africa and the Middle East.

DULLES SAID the West had checked the advance of communism at this point but warned that Russia's trade-and-aid offensive if it succeeds might bring a majority of the world's peoples under Communist rule.

Italy, West Germany, Holland and Canada have advanced various proposals for expanding economic and political cooperation among NATO members.

Foreign Minister Christian Pineau of France suggested creation of a new world economic development agency to help backward countries through the United Nations. That would give Russia a part in the project.

The idea appeared highly unpopular in Washington where President Eisenhower questioned whether it would be practical to channel U. S. aid funds through the U. N.

The job of drafting the manifesto was handed to Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaka of Belgium, who is known for his facility with words.

Car Hits Youth At Intersection Of Court-Mound

A seven-year old Laureville boy and a 47-year old New Boston motorist were injured in two separate accidents.

The youth, Patrick Riley, was struck by a car as he crossed west at Court and Mound Streets at 5:55 p. m. Friday. He was taken to Berger Hospital with fractures of the leg, plus possible internal injuries, and was later transferred to Children's Hospital in Columbus.

Emmett H. Holley, 36, of Columbus, driver of the car, told police he had the green light in his favor when the accident took place. He was going south on S. Court St.

At 2:15 a. m. Saturday, James C. Johnson was hurt when his car apparently went out of control on a curve on the Tarlton-Adelphi Rd., approximately one mile south of Tarlton.

JOHNSON was taken to Berger Hospital for treatment of deep lacerations over the left eye lid and on the right knee cap, according to a report from the sheriff's department.

He told the sheriff's department he was traveling south when a car which had apparently been parked along the side of the road suddenly started. Johnson swerved to avoid the car.

Slayer Of Cop Gets Death Penalty

CINCINNATI (AP)—A jury today found Robert Lee Jackson, 40, guilty of first degree murder and of armed robbery in the cafe holdup in which detective Walter Hart was slain.

Judge Ferd Bader said that sentence would not be passed until after a defense motion for a retrial is heard.

The death sentence is mandatory on a first degree murder conviction in Ohio without a recommendation for mercy.

Jackson was jointly indicted with Lemuel Trotter, who is still at large, and Willie Barnett who was found insane and sent to Lima State Hospital.

Whole Town Council Quits In Leesburg

LEESBURG (AP)—It was up to Mayor John Barrett today to appoint a new village council after all six councilmen resigned.

Village Solicitor Robert Smith and Highland County Prosecutor Richard L. Davis said since the council no longer exists, the authority to fill vacancies on it passes to the mayor.

Ordinarily, the council would fill any vacancy arising among itself.

The two attorneys said the Ohio General Code provides for the appointments to be made after expiration of a 30-day period. The appointees would serve the remainder of unexpired terms through 1957.

Barrett, 32-year-old head of this community of about 1,000 people, received all six resignations in a single letter.

Resigning were Robert Glassner, council president, and members Ray Butler, W. T. Morris, Russell Henson, Kenneth Arthur and Tom Duncan.

The six blamed a "minority" of citizens for criticisms "directed at every effort" the councilmen made to improve civic affairs.

Councilmen said criticism came on such subjects as law enforcement, financial matters, disposition of storm waters and maintenance of streets.

"We can best serve the village through our resignation and thus provide a clear path for those who are of the opinion that they can do a better job than we are doing," the councilmen said.

Labor Reporter To Be Blind Forever, Eye Experts Say

NEW YORK (AP)—Victor Riesel, labor reporter who for years tried to shed light on labor racketeering, has lost the sight of both eyes. Sulphuric acid was thrown in his face a month ago.

Four eye specialists announced yesterday they had been unable to save the sight of Riesel, 41, set upon early April 5 as he left a Broadway restaurant. A few hours earlier, Riesel had made a radio attack on labor racketeering.

Robert M. Hall, president of the syndicate that distributes Riesel's column to 193 U. S. newspapers, said: "There is no hope at all now that Victor Riesel will ever see again."

Hall added that Riesel will continue his column with the aid of assistants.

Nearly $40,000 in rewards have failed to turn up any clue to his assailant, described only as a slender, black-haired man wearing a blue and white lumberjack jacket. The FBI as well as local police have been conducting an intensive manhunt.

AN ASSOCIATE said the news of his blindness was broken gradually to Riesel.

"He took it beautifully—like a major," the associate said.

The attack on Riesel came without warning as he left Lindy's restaurant about 3 a. m. With him at the time was Miss Betty Nevins, who assists him in his newspaper and radio work. She was not harmed.

At midnight preceding the assault, Riesel substituted for radio commentator Barry Gray while the latter was on vacation.

Riesel interviewed two unionists Bill Wilkins and Peter Batalias, who are fighting the leadership of the Long Island local of the International Union of Operating Engineers.

In his broadcast, Riesel assailed William DeKoning and his son, William Jr., both convicted extortionists who have run the local for many years.

The engineers' local has contributed to the reward fund built up by newspapers, newspaper organizations and labor unions.

DeKoning Jr. has denied that he or his union had any knowledge of the attack on Riesel.

Execution In Gas Chamber Faces Denver Plane-Bomber

DENVER (AP)—Death in Colorado's gas chamber was decreed last night for John Gilbert Graham, 24, who confessed dynamiting an airliner that hurled his mother and 43 others to death.

Seven men and five women jurors deliberated an hour and 12 minutes before returning a conviction of first degree murder in the death of Graham's mother, Mrs. Daisie E. King, 55.

Graham, father of two, bit his lower lip but otherwise showed no emotion as Dist. Judge Joseph M. McDonald read the death verdict. He told reporters a moment later: "I'm innocent."

"Of course, we'll appeal," said Charles S. Vigil, one of Graham's three court-appointed lawyers. Judge McDonald granted the defense 10 days to file a new trial motion. Graham will not be formally sentenced until that motion is heard.

Graham took out two air trip insurance policies on his mother's life naming him the beneficiary. Each would have paid him $37,500.

He confessed to the FBI last Nov. 13 that he slipped a 25-stick dynamite time bomb in Mrs. King's suitcase before she left Denver last Nov. 1 on a United Air Lines plane for a trip to Anchorage, Alaska. An issue at the trial was whether the confession was obtained voluntarily.

Forty-three other persons died with Mrs. King when the airliner exploded 11 minutes after the take-off.

Graham's wife, Gloria, 22, sobbed hysterically for several minutes after the verdict was returned.

Dist. Atty. Bert M. Keating, who called 75 witnesses and presented 130 exhibits in the state's case, declared in his closing argument to the jury:

"If this is not a crime for the death penalty, where in the history of the world was there ever a case that merited the extreme penalty?"

Keating called the case: "matricide for money."

Vigil and another of Graham's lawyers, John J. Gibbons, painted Graham as a "psychopathic liar." Vigil asked the jury: "What are the lies and what are the truths? If he's lying in this statement (his confession to the FBI) he shouldn't be found guilty."

Ralph W. Bonar, foreman of the jury that heard evidence and arguments for 11 days, said all but five minutes of the jury's deliberation was devoted to reading the court's instructions. He added:

"We agreed no the first ballot with very little discussion."

The mountain of evidence against Graham was built mostly by the FBI, which assigned 30 agents to investigate the crash.

Bikini Lagoon Tagged As Target Point For Shot Of Nuclear Fury

ENIWETOK (AP)—Men in charge of the first drop of a hydrogen device from an American plane say they are confident the huge B52 will have "more than adequate clearance" to escape unscathed from the nuclear fury it looses.

Officials of Joint Task Force VII, who yesterday fired the first "small" bomb of the 1956 Pacific test series, outlined plans for the scheduled trial of an air-dropped H-bomb described officially as "one of the largest in the series."

Its power is described as "several megatons" or equal to several million tons of TNT.

It thus may be around a thousand times as powerful as the bomb which initiated the "Operation Redwing" series.

Seen by newsmen from 15 miles away, this shot appeared as a brilliant white dot that blossomed almost instantly into a cream, yellow, orange and dull red flash.

Although test officials declined to specify its nature, there was speculation it represented a missile warhead with force equal to 15,000 tons of TNT.

TEST DIRECTOR Dr. William E. Ogle said the thermonuclear bomb, scheduled to go off about noon Monday EST, will burst several thousand feet above sea level over Bikini atoll.

For this shot, called "Cherokee," the observer ship Mt. McKinley will be stationed 32 miles away. A chart showed the aiming point for the bomb will be almost the precise center of Bikini Lagoon, slightly east of the area where target ships were sunk in two previous atomic tests.

Ogle did not disclose the intended height of the B52. America's mightiest bomber, at the time it releases its package.

However, the eight-jet strategic bomber can operate easily well above 40,000 feet. The huge Stratofortress is even faster than its smaller brother, the B47 medium bomber, which is acknowledged officially to have a speed of more than 600 mph.

If the H-bomb is detonated at 8,000 to 10,000 feet the bomber's (Continued on Page Two)

DROODLES

By ROGER PRICE

"ABSENT-MINDED PROFESSOR'S FINGER"
Dr. Schwine has a psychological theory about absent-minded people. He says the reason they forget things is because they can't remember them. And the reason they can't remember them is because they're absent-minded. This is a little too scientific for me but the way Dr. Schwine explains it it sounds okay in my book ("Doodles of Droodles," $1.00). Dr. S. claims that since elephants never forget, the secret of a perfect memory must lie in eating plenty of peanuts and to prove it he plans to eat five pounds of peanuts every day until he remembers everything he's ever forgotten. I hope it works. Maybe I'll get back the $3.00 he borrowed from me on Christmas in 1952.

height and high speed will take it miles away by the time the bomb goes off.

Hours before shot time, the bomb will be lifted into the belly of the B52. High secrecy will screen it from the eyes of all but the handful of men who "have the need to know."

Other planes, carrying cameras and instruments, will get into the air at the same time.

Because this is a precise test of explosion as well as the mere ordnance behavior of the bomb, detailed arrangements are made for "instrumenting" the detonation. The bomb, falling clear of the bay, will set off a sequence timer on an island of the Bikini atoll group.

That, in turn, will put into operation an array of cameras, pressure measurement instruments and other technical information gadgets to record the split-second history of the explosion.

In addition to the purely instrumental recording of the air-dropped H-bomb, the weapons testers are preparing together some information on what would happen to cities in a thermonuclear attack. Ogle says that "effects of the blast on building structures will be studied."

U.N. Aide Set To Make His Peace Report

ROME (AP)—U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld leaves today for his New York U. N. headquarters to make a detailed personal report on his peace mission to the Middle East.

Hammarskjöld spent part of his final hours here finishing up the report he will deliver to the U. N. Security Council which sent him on the mission to seek ways to ease Arab-Israeli tensions.

In 25 days of personal diplomacy, Hammarskjöld won cease-fire pledges from Israel and four Arab neighbors — Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon. The exact extent to which these pledges commit each state will not be known until the Security Council convenes, probably within a week.

A brief spat between the Arab allies yesterday revealed they do not see eye to eye on how far the agreements bind them.

Lebanon accused Syria of letting her down by granting a cease-fire without a written Israeli promise not to divert irrigation waters from the Jordan River. Later Lebanon accepted the Syrian position that its pledge covered the river issue in another way.

Lebanon indicated earlier that she had agreed to a cease-fire only so long as Israel did not resume the river project dormant for 2½ years. The Israelis have said they will not delay it.

'Driverless' Car Involved In Crash

COLUMBUS (AP)—Mrs. Shirley Ann Borror, 19, was surprised and who could blame her? Her auto was struck by a car that appeared to be driverless.

Three-year-old Timothy Kelly Wolf was probably even more surprised. He was behind the steering wheel of the other car.

Mrs. John L. Wolf was making supper yesterday when her son took the keys to the family automobile, went to the car, locked himself in, stuck the key in the ignition switch and turned over the motor.

From its parking spot in front of the Wolf home the car swung around in reverse and collided with Mrs. Borror's moving auto.

British Seeking Space Engineers

LONDON (AP)—A British aircraft firm is seeking engineers to work on a space travel project.

An advertisement appeared in "Nature," a scientific journal, and described the firm only as a "well known aircraft company." Those interested were asked to mail their replies to a London agency.

Girls Encouraged To Follow Nursing

Berger Officials Stress Need; Public Invited To View Hospital

Local girl students who plan a career in nursing had added encouragement today as the district prepared to share in nationwide observance of Hospital Day.

Senior girl students planning to follow nursing as a life work were reminded again of the high purpose in their calling. They were also welcomed to serve, after graduation from nursing school, at Berger Hospital.

Official encouragement for local nurses-to-be was timed to coincide with the beginning of National Hospital Week. An open house program is planned at Berger Hospital Sunday afternoon, and an all-day program has also been arranged in and around the Veterans Hospital at Chillicothe.

Administrator Tom Curtis has issued a special invitation to the public to visit Berger Hospital between 2 and 5 p. m. Members of the Berger Hospital guilds will serve as guides to show visitors the many services available under the joint city-county administration.

Many local residents also planned to visit Chillicothe for the celebration in that city.

CURTIS pointed out that a renewed call for more nurses would be appropriate here on the day set aside to open the nationwide observance.

"The shortage of nurses, which has been critical for so long, is one of the most difficult problems we face," Curtis said. "Consequently we are only too glad to encourage young girls who plan to take up nursing, especially girls who live in Circleville and the surrounding county."

In similar vein, Dirtha Dixon, director of nurses at Berger Hospital, said:

"Those of us in the field of nursing and hospital administration are glad to learn of these girls interested in nursing as a career. There is the satisfaction of knowing, when preparation for your chosen career is completed, you may come back to your community and serve in a vital capacity. Therefore, we welcome any future nurses."

After careful study and analysis of the situation, we can state definitely there is a great need for registered professional nurses at Berger Hospital. We need immediately eight registered professional nurses in order to achieve a higher standard of nursing care.

"We appeal to any registered professional nurse in the community, who can work in the hospital either full time or part time, to contact us at once."

"There is another level of bedside nursing employed today which is the licensed practical nurse. We are also interested in employing licensed practical nurses, who fill an important place in the total bedside care."

THE WORDS of encouragement were directed to prospective nurses all over the district, in Circleville and other sections of the county.

A random poll of local nurses-to-be, with Circleville High School seniors chosen to speak for all of the group, put noteworthy accent

Elsewhere on the Ohio political scene, Lt. Gov. John Brown, candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, attacked professional lobbyists who pressure legislators.

TWO SEEKERS of the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, Robert W. Reider and Oscar L. Fleckner, spoke in Cleveland and Dayton, respectively.

Reider, a Port Clinton publisher, lashed out at the GOP for "subjecting to repressive rule the wage earners, minority groups and other average Ohioans."

Fleckner, Columbus businessman, told a Dayton television audience that adults should set a "better example" for youth in an effort to curb juvenile delinquency. He recommended adoption of laws to create financial responsibility of parents for acts of vandalism by their children.

Some Reports Still Lacking On Cancer Funds

With some collections still not reported, the Cancer Fund drive has thus far netted $2,636.90, according to an announcement released today by the county group.

No reports have been received from six of the townships in the county nor from coin cans. Also, collections from Tag Day have not been reported.

Counties are reminded that they may still contribute by sending their money to the Cancer Fund in care of the Rev. Jack Bennett of St. Philip's Church in Circleville. The Rev. Mr. Bennett may also be called at 745 for anyone wishing aid in cancer care.

Many special committees have functioned throughout the campaign. Heads of these groups included the following:

CIRCLEVILLE house-to-house—Miss Alice Minor, Mrs. Alonzo Hill and Mrs. Harry Hosler; special gifts plus business and professional—Mrs. Norman Kutler; Pickaway County house-to-house—the Rev. Fred Ketner; campaign headquarters—Mrs. Richard Penn; Tag Day—Miss Margaret Good; publicity—Dr. Richard Samuel; education—Dr. William Speakman; clubs and organizations—Mrs. Forrest Tomlinson.

The Rev. Emmerson Abts organized the Ashville campaign and got members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post to conduct the drive. Mrs. William Radcliff was in charge of solicitations in the Williamsport area.

TV Is Seen First Export To Moon

COLUMBUS (AP)—A research engineer says that man's first export to the moon probably will be television.

Dr. Dean Woolridge of Los Angeles said yesterday: "Between 10 and 20 years from now, someone is going to shoot a missile to the moon. It probably won't carry anybody, just a TV sender to send images of the surroundings back to earth."

Woolridge, president of the research and production firm of Ramo-Woodridge Corp. of Los Angeles, is here to address the annual conference for engineers and architects at Ohio State University.

He said it is "technically" within man's grasp to shoot a rocket beyond the field of gravity today which would take a speed of about 25,000 mph.

He said the coming satellite program is an indication that actual space travel is not too far off. A satellite travels at nearly the speed of an inter-space missile. But he warned that numerous problems must be overcome, and not the least worry of scientists, he said, is a developing lack of technical people to keep the United States forging ahead in scientific fields.

Public Reminded Of Lessons In Soil Stewardship Sunday

Don Archer of the Pickaway County District of the soil conservation service has reminded the public of the lessons to be renewed tomorrow — Soil Stewardship Sunday.

Touching upon the hidden, though true and lasting, link between spiritual betterment and care of the nation's farm soil, Archer called attention to a statement by D. A. Williams, administrator of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service.

Lauding the purpose of Soil Stewardship Sunday, Williams said in part:

"Something more than material benefit is impelling American landowners and operators to become conservation farmers or ranchers. Something more than the established fact that soil and water conservation increases farm buying power is motivating businessmen and countless others to support conservation work."

"A FARMER or rancher finds pleasure in the beauty of his conservation-treated fields, pastures, woodlands, and wildlife areas. And I feel that all the rest of us share his pleasure as we drive by or fly over his acres; or, when we're extra fortunate, have a chance to feel healthy soil or vigorous sod beneath our feet, or join the owner in harvesting a wildlife crop more abundant now than a few years ago."

Murder Rap Faces Boy, 15, In Shootings

SEAT PLEASANT, Md. (AP)—A 15-year-old junior high school boy who police said went gunning for his school principal faced a murder charge today in the fatal shooting of a teacher.

Police said Billy Ray Prevatte also wounded two other male teachers yesterday when he went through the Maryland Park Junior High School firing a rifle. One of the teachers is in critical condition.

The boy had been expelled two months ago from a school in Raleigh, N. C., after threatening a teacher there.

The shootings came after a teacher had sent the boy to talk with the principal because he had not handed in a written assignment. The teacher who initiated the reprimand escaped unharmed, as did the principal, John Hrezo.

State Attorney Blair H. Smith ordered young Prevatte charged with murder, two counts of assault with intent to kill and two counts of assault with a deadly weapon. Prevatte was jailed in Upper Marlboro, Md., to await a preliminary hearing next Friday.

Fatally shot was Frazier Cameron, a 32-year-old widower from Westfield, N. J. Athletic coach Francis D. Wagner, 25, was wounded in the chest and his condition was listed as critical. Robert Hicks, 31, was wounded in the hand trying to disarm the boy.

Death Of Boy, 4, Eyed By Coroner

CLEVELAND (AP)—Dr. Samuel R. Gerber, Cuyahoga County coroner, said he would rule today on the cause of death of 4-year-old Mark Stephen Morrison, who died in a dentist's chair yesterday after being given nitrous oxide gas preparatory to having some teeth filled.

The boy was pronounced dead by Dr. Elliot C. Margies, an anesthesiologist who administered the gas in the office of Dr. Edward J. Green.

St. Philip's Church Sets Observance Of Rogation Sunday

St. Philip's Church will celebrate Rogation Sunday beginning at the 9 a. m. family service, when special prayers and intercessions for all those who labor on the land will be offered, asking God's blessing on the crops throughout the coming season.

The Rector will follow the annual tradition of Rogation observance in the Anglican Communion. The event is used to remind people of the dependence upon the land and the marvellous way in which God works with the husbandmen to bring forth "the fruits of the earth".

Such Rogation Sunday services as that which will be held in St. Philip's Church, with special emphasis on the farmer and his work, are very ancient in the Episcopal Church. They originated long before the time of the Reformation in France and spread from there to England, where they are still a part of Church of England calendars in rural areas.

The name "Rogation" is derived from the Latin word meaning "to ask" and is used to designate the supplicatory nature of the day.

The Rector wishes to remind all Episcopalians that the Rogation Days — Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week — are designated by The Book of Common Prayer as being "days of solemn supplication". Therefore, all the faithful of the church should especially remember in their prayers on those days the farmers and their work and ask God to bring forth the fruits of the Earth so that in due time we may enjoy them.

In observance of the Rogation Days, there will be special celebrations of The Holy Communion in St. Philip's Church on Monday, beginning at 7:30 a. m., and on Wednesday, beginning at 10 a. m.

Church Of Christ Sermon Will Deal With Absenteeism

The sermon topic announced for Sunday morning at the Church of Christ is "Church Absenteeism".

In commenting on this lesson, evangelist D. E. Kinkade points out: "During the late part of World War II, the output of factories and industry in general was hindered because of 'absenteeism' on the part of many of the workers. Maximum production depended upon each worker faithfully doing his or her part."

"In the church of our Lord, Jesus Christ, maximum production depends upon each Christian realizing his responsibility and doing to the best of his ability what he is able to do. Part of each Christian's responsibility is to be faithful in attendance at all of the services of the church. 'Absenteeism' on the part of members increases the burden that others must bear and hinders the progress of the Lord's work."

"The writer of the Hebrew letter said, 'Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching.' (Heb. 10:25)."

"The early Christians set the example for us by assembling upon the first day of the week (Acts 20:7). This they did to partake of the Lord's supper (Acts 20:7; 1 Cor. 11:23-24; Acts 2:42); to exhort and admonish one another; to give for the support of the Lord's work (1 Cor. 16:1-2); to praise God with the fruit of the lips (Col. 3:16; Eph. 5:19; Heb. 2:12); and to have fellowship with other Christians."

"Every Christian should be thankful for the great privilege of assembling with other Christians and guard this freedom with a great manifestation of zeal."

THE CHURCH POINTS THE WAY

Thousands of columns have been published in American newspapers about Juvenile Delinquency. Investigations have been held in scores of cities, and many witnesses have been called in an effort to find the cause and the cure.

In all this sudden excitement little has been said about the lack of religion in the homes and hearts of these thousands of unfortunate youths. Far too much emphasis has been placed on inadequate play facilities, too little discipline, too few policemen, etc.

Juvenile Delinquency is primarily a moral and religious problem. Neither jail nor playground, as necessary as they are, will do much to foster love, goodwill, self-respect and charity in the heart of a person. The development of love and charity in the life of a youth needs constant day by day cultivation. But how can a parent properly train a child if that parent has had no religion or spiritual training or background and lives a selfish and faithless life? How can a parent teach a youth the fundamental spiritual values if that parent does not even attempt to live an exemplary life and does not admit his or her dependence upon God, our creator?

Down through the ages the Church has been the bulwark against crime, sin and evil. Those who would solve the problem of delinquency in young or old should seek the way of the Church, for those who need spiritual healing should seek spiritual treatment. The Church stands ready to help parent and youth alike.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Have You Ever Seen A "Prayer Book"?

If not, you've missed one of the most important publications in the English language. The Book of Common Prayer of the Anglican Communion (of which the Episcopal Church in the United States is a part) is, second only to the Holy Bible, probably the most widely printed and used book in the English language.

Records fail to show how many millions of copies of this unusual book have been printed and circulated since it was first issued by the Church of England in the sixteenth century. Sufficient to say that it has had a profound influence on the development of the English language as we use it today. The Prayer Book, in English and translated into many other tongues, is today the guide to worship for more than 40,000,000 Anglicans the world over.

It is called the Book of Common Prayer because we use it in "common", so that we may join together as participants in corporate worship — not as individuals, but as joint members in "the Body of Christ" — the Church.

The Book of Common Prayer is a thrilling document with a thrilling history. Learn more about it. Learn the great satisfaction of corporate worship by joining us in the worship of God in the Episcopal Church near you — soon!

You can learn more about the Book of Common Prayer by reading the interesting booklet "How We Got the Prayer Book". Send the coupon. It's free. No obligation.

'UPGRADING' AND MORTGAGES

THE BUSINESS outlook is generally good for several years ahead and real estate prices are not likely to decline, is the belief of Charles G. Wright, chief economist of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

Housing demand now is chiefly based on "upgrading," and if income and employment remain high the building boom may continue for years, he claims.

The present boom in housing, it is disclosed, is made up 90 per cent of single-family house construction, whereas in the late 1920s, approximately 60 per cent of the family units built were single-family houses.

Another significant feature is the great shift from renting to home ownership. In 1930, about 46 per cent of all nonfarm dwelling units were occupied by their owners. Today 56 per cent of the houses are owner-occupied.

An upward shift in income and distribution of income has also produced a larger number of families seeking and able to incur debt. The expanded housing program has brought with it a larger mortgage debt, with payments and repayments becoming an enormous sum annually.

There is no question that mortgage debt today is high when compared with all previous levels. The amount of mortgage debt estimated to have been outstanding in 1929 was about $19 billion. At the end of 1955, it was nearly $89 billion.

As the present boom continues, the debt must continue to grow to meet the new needs it is serving. It is hoped that it can continue to grow without endangering its own stability or that of the economy as a whole.

RUSSIA'S RATE OF GAIN

DEBATE OVER how much the productive output of Soviet Russia is increasing continues. Some think Russia is going great guns while others suppose that any favorable statistics out of Moscow are mere communist boasts.

There are some calculations in the April issue of Lloyds Bank Review, London, which make it appear that the Russians are coming up fast. According to this appraisal, the Soviet Union's industrial output was 35 per cent of the United States in 1950 and is now about 50 per cent. The output of the U. S. gained 24 per cent and that of the Soviet Union 75 per cent during the five-year period.

Projecting this rate of gain into the future, there is some possibility that Russia might equal the U. S. in productive power by 1963.

Well, let it if it can. If Russia can produce enough to give its own and satellite peoples a standard of living comparable to America's, the red leaders will find it more difficult to prod their peoples into world conquest.

One supposes, too, that the rate of Soviet gains will soon level off. When the fleshpots of Russia begin to fill up, the people will turn soft with fat living. That, anyhow, has been the experience of every country that attained ample production of consumer goods on short hours of labor.

MONITORING A MENACE

THE NEWS that many weather bureaus in the U. S. will monitor the air for any radioactive fallout from the forthcoming nuclear tests in the Pacific is a chilly reminder of the perilous times.

The Atomic Energy Commission has made it clear that no fallout is expected outside of the 375,000 nautical square mile area in the Marshall Islands where the tests will take place. In fact some of the islands in that atoll group are outside the danger zone and inhabitants will not be evacuated unless something goes wrong.

But a nationwide network of weather and health monitoring stations will test the air to determine how much, if any, radioactivity comes this far.

There's undoubtedly nothing to worry about. But the fact that areas more than 5,000 miles away from the tests are included in the experiment cannot help but give one a slightly uncomfortable feeling.

It brings closer to home the ultimate horrors of an atomic war, to realize that the U. S. is somehow included in an experiment thousands of miles away in the Pacific.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Undoubtedly the most significant fact about Alger Hiss's lecture at Princeton is that Hiss said nothing that was interesting, startling or even important. He delivered a polite lecture on Geneva with some references to Yalta and added neither light nor heat to either conference. Whatever he knows about Yalta that has not been published, he kept to himself although this could have been an opportunity to make an invaluable contribution to history.

The reporters and photographers who went to Princeton to hear the intimate revelations of an ex-spy were fooled. There was an overtone of scholarship and a whimsical response to questions, but no revelations. They might just as well have stayed at home and watched some escapist drama on television.

What they should have noted was that the small Princeton society which gave Hiss rising plaudits at the end of his short speech has nothing to remember except that it did something extraordinary; it brought an ex-convict to Princeton to lecture not on crime but on history and international politics.

Perhaps some professor of sociology will one day invite Lucky Luciano to lecture on the gentle art of dope pushing. Certainly Lucky knows more about it than any academic sociologist.

It could even happen some day that a professor in the department of international relations or a student society specializing in this field will invite Burgess and Maclean to come to the United States to lecture on high-class espionage and how not to get caught. Burgess might provide interesting overtones.

That is about all that the Hiss lecture at Princeton amounted to. It is part of a program to rehabilitate Alger Hiss. He naturally has a right to aspire to rehabilitation and it is understandable that his friends would want to assist him.

It is also understandable that he should believe that time will work in his favor and that a younger generation, like these boys at Princeton, will wonder what it was all about and not take the trouble to find out. Nobody will get college credits for finding out.

But when it comes to rehabilitation, Alger Hiss will be up against the fact that he has not told his story in public. Rehabilitation can only follow a public explanation of his extraordinary conduct. Alger Hiss went to prison not for espionage but for perjury.

In a word, after two trials, it was held by court and jury that he had not told the truth concerning his personal relations with a Soviet Russian espionage ring while he was in the State Department in an important position. That is the record that stands.

It is impossible to say that Hiss has paid his debt to society and ought never again to be molested or questioned. But has he paid his debt to society? The problem here is one of morals. Had Hiss been convicted of embezzlement, of burglary, of kidnapping, it would be possible to say that serving a period in prison pays one's debt to society. But Alger Hiss was convicted of perjury in relation to espionage. It would seem to me that the only truth concerning the espionage; otherwise the question will always arise to plague him as to whether he really was a spy.

It is a tough problem because we must take it for granted that Hiss does not believe that he will benefit by blandly announcing to the world that the Whittaker Chambers and others said is true and that he did act for Russia when he was employed to act for the United States.

Surely he must be ill-advised that silence about his case will achieve rehabilitation in public opinion. Yet morally there is nothing less that he can do, because the record stands and needs to be erased if he is to be accepted again as having a place in our society.

Perhaps he does not care; then why did he go to Princeton to deliver an address in his chosen field? Before Princeton, whoever is his agent in such matters tried other colleges which turned Hiss down. Obviously, Hiss does care and does seek rehabilitation. His task then is to humble himself, as one must do, before the truth, whatever he knows it to be.

When the party factions in the various states get through with each other, the hospital shortage in the nation may really be felt.

Many federal courts are reported to be overloaded with cases, but if one of them runs out of work it can always reverse the conviction of a communist.

There are a million more females in the United States than males. Uncle Sam will indeed be intrepid if he tries to control that surplus.

CHAPTER 14
THE MUSIC had started again and Doctor Harridan guided Val onto the dance floor. Her blue eyes smiled up at him.

"I'm sorry if I said anything to upset you this afternoon," he said presently. "I was tired and on edge, and we happened to get onto a subject which," he hesitated briefly, "I'd rather not talk about."

"I'd rather not talk about it either," she murmured. "Couldn't we all just forget it?"

"There are some things you can't forget, Miss Allison," he said quietly.

"Since I'm in mufti tonight, Doctor Harridan, couldn't it be Val?" he smiled. Then he added abruptly, in a horrified voice, "Gosh, I'm sorry, I trod on your toe."

There was a pause in which his large handsome face clouded over. "I'm sorry to bring up the subject again," he said. "I thought I'd begun to get over the—the hurt of Eileen's death until this trip."

"But there are some things in life everyone must forget," she said. "Please, Doctor Harridan, you must forget too." Her voice broke slightly. It was almost a plea.

He didn't answer that directly; he said, instead, "If it's to be Val off duty, my name is Bruce. You know, Val," he was obviously intending to change the subject, "I can't tell you now much I'm looking forward to the idea of both of us working together at the hospital in Jamaica."

It was as though he'd picked the words from her brain. Her steps faltered, and again he trod on her toes, but this time she knew it had been her fault.

Then suddenly he grinned down at her. "I feel gay tonight. I'd like to whirl you around the floor in an old-fashioned waltz. I feel at last I've met someone who can understand me and whom I can understand. I mean, my glance was both intent and sincere, 'that I've met someone whom I could really like—or love.'"

A hand tapped him on the back. "Excuse me, Doctor," Dirk was standing beside them smiling. They both stopped dancing. "Excuse you what?" Bruce demanded hoarsely. Dirk laughed. "Excuse me nothing! But this is an Excuse-me dance, Doctor, or didn't you know? I'm going to claim your partner." His voice was mocking, almost insolently mocking.

"You're darn well not going to claim my partner," Bruce said roughly. "You claimed my partner once before and got away with it. This time I'm going to keep my partner, swine that you are."

Dirk hit him. He hit him quickly and unexpectedly and expertly. Bruce sprawled on the floor. The music stopped. But after an agitated motion from the purser, it started up again, too loudly.

Bruce got slowly to his feet, his large body towering over the slimmer man. "You want to fight?" he asked aggressively.

Dirk shrugged and smiled. "No, of course not. I apologize. Undoubtedly I was drunk." But the mocking note in his voice was plainly discernible as he added, "I really do apologize, Doctor. I'm sure you won't want to make an incident out of this regrettable affair."

Everyone seemed to accept the fact that Dirk had been drunk. The Captain shrugged and muttered that "some fellows couldn't hold their liquor," and added, "especially if they've been under the weather for a couple of days."

Val, of course, knew that Dirk hadn't been drunk. And for the life of her, she couldn't understand just why the attack had been made. Certainly Bruce's words had been offensive, but she felt he had been goaded on by the underlying mockery of Dirk's voice. And she knew too that much more lay behind the incident.

Almost immediately after the incident, Bruce took her arm and walked her out on the deck. "I should have knocked his block off, shouldn't I?" he said savagely. "I would have, but it would have embarrassed the Captain. He would have had to report the incident to the ship's owners, and it might have reflected on him."

Wall Street banker took his wife to Paris where he closed a big bond deal. Final signing of the papers took longer than he had expected, so he called the hotel and told the French maid, "Please tell madame to go to bed and wait for me."

"Bien, monsieur," answered the maid, "but who shall I say called?"

Another new maid turned up at the Vanderbricks to help at a big dance. "From 7 to 8," Mrs. Vanderbrick instructed her, "you are to stand at the ballroom entrance and call the guests' names as they arrive."

"What jolly fun that will be," enthused the maid. "I know a couple of beauts!"

And a very social Mrs. Broadbeam told her new maid: "When we give a big party for the embassy set, you may have to help the butler upstairs."

"That will be all right," conceded the maid, "if he'll do the same for me. I may take a nip or two myself."

How Aspirin Works Is Still A Big Riddle

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

I DON'T suppose many of you imagine there's anything very mysterious about an aspirin tablet. But there is.

Aspirin is one of our most widely used drugs. Every day thousands of Americans gulp an aspirin or two to cure headaches. Ten grains is usually enough, for a case of sniffles.

Pain Relievers

In fact, an estimated 15 tons of these pain relievers are used in the United States each day.

There is no mystery about what it does.

We know that it kills pain safely and effectively and that it reduces fever quickly—even more quickly than antibiotics in some cases. However, we don't know how it does these things.

Recent Studies

Studies are under way right now at the University of Illinois, University of Michigan, Northwestern University and Purdue University to try to solve this mysterious riddle.

Scientists are even using radio-active-tagged aspirin and geiger counters to try to trace the path of aspirin through the bodies of rats.

Through these studies we hope to learn, among other things, whether aspirin relieves pain through action on the adrenal gland, the brain thalamus or the specific pain areas in the body.

Big Puzzle

One of the big puzzles is why aspirin will help bring the body temperature down to normal when a patient has a fever, yet does not affect normal temperature when taken for an ordinary headache.

Loss of Heat

Apparently, aspirin increases what we term "heat dissipation" in the case of a fever. It causes loss of heat from the body's surface, thus lowering the temperature. But how it causes this heat dissipation or why it works in this way only when necessary to lower a fever, is still a mystery.

Medical science has come a long, long way, but we've still got a lot to learn.

Dr. Habib Features Talk At Junior Woman's Meet

Dr. Ahmed Taha Habib, a native of Egypt who is studying at Ohio State University, was the speaker Friday evening for the Circleville Junior Woman's Club meeting, held in the home of Mrs. Ray Friend of Dartmouth Dr.

Dr. Habib presented his talk on Egypt. He spoke of Egypt as having the first known civilization, yet being a part of the "Dark Continent".

He said that the country with a population of 22 million lives extensively on agriculture, with one third of the land area used for this purpose.

Dr. Habib said that in an effort to combat disease a health unit has been set up for each five villages and a unit for each five villages which supplies clean clear water. These villages in 1950 were using oil lamps, but with the completion of a dam, now being built, every village in Egypt can be supplied with electricity.

The speaker, who will soon be returning to Cairo, Egypt, as an assistant professor of food chemistry at the capital's university, came to Ohio State in 1952.

When he arrived in New York, he told of being impressed by the rushing and hurrying of Americans.

Dr. Habib expressed the opinion that greater understanding between the countries could better be achieved by bringing Egyptians here than sending "Point 4 experts" to Egypt. He said, "We are your friends, we cannot live without friends, we expect to continue to be your friends".

He added that his country must depend on the United States for help and there must be mutual understanding of the hopes and aspirations of the people. He mentioned that the average income of a farm family is fifty-five cents per day. He stressed that his country would be prevented from becoming Communist by religion and ideology.

Roundtown Retrospect

By Mac Noggle

Much of the history of any region can be found, in concentrated form, in the ads of old newspapers.

By a careful reading of these, one can learn what were the latest fashions, what the people ate and drank, what were the necessities and luxuries of living, what were the latest remedies for ailments, what was modern in transportation and what was the last word in the methods of earning a living.

You can even determine how much the dollar would buy.

To illustrate what we mean—we would like to present one phase of our local history, which can be gleaned from the advertisements in a souvenir program of the C. A. C.'s first Fourth of July Celebration, in 1899. From this we are able to give you an almost-complete picture of the up-town merchants and professional men of Roundtown, back 57 years ago.

WE HAVEN'T the faintest hope that any youngsters or newcomers to Circleville will read this—to be honest, we believe it would be a waste of time. Names of our business men and where their stores were, more than fifty years ago, cannot possibly mean anything to these folks, we know, but surely, for just this once, they will bear with a few of us old-timers, while we reminisce about up-town Circleville as it was when we were very much younger.

As usual—in the back part of such publications are found the "cards" of our professional men.

We find listed as physicians and surgeons the names of: A. W. Holman, Odd Fellows Building; D. V. Courtright, East Main Street; H. C. Allen, 122 East Main St.; G. H. Colvill, East Main St.; George T. Rowe, 128 East Main Street.

There were three dentists' cards: G. S. & W. G. Corne, 119 East Main St.; E. J. Lilly, over Wittich's Confectionery and R. F. Lilly, in the McHenry Block, West Main Street.

BEING VEEP HAZARDOUS JOB? More U. S. Vice Presidents Than Presidents Have Succumbed in Office of Natural Causes

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
Central Press Association
Correspondent

WASHINGTON—When a President who has had a heart attack seeks re-election, the man who runs with him—and his health—become of paramount concern to the nation.

For only a heart beat separates the vice president from the occupant of the White House.

Yet, strangely enough, American history reveals that the office of vice president has proven more hazardous than that of President.

Seven vice presidents have died in office of natural causes, compared to four Chief Executives. Three other Presidents have also died in office, but by violent means, at the hands of assassins.

The vice presidents who died while serving were George Clinton, Elbridge Gerry, William R. King, Henry Wilson, Thomas A. Hendricks, Garret A. Hobart and John S. Sherman.

The four Presidents who died of natural causes were William Henry Harrison, Zachary Taylor, Warren G. Harding and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

ONE PRESIDENT, James Madison, was singularly unfortunate in his vice presidents. Both died during his eight-year tenure in office, Clinton in 1812 and Gerry in 1814.

President Franklin Pierce saw his Vice President King succumb in 1853 only six weeks after they were inaugurated. President Ulysses S. Grant served his second term without a vice president. Wilson died in 1875.

Hendricks was vice president during President Grover Cleveland's first term. He served only 8½ months. Hobart died during the first term of President William McKinley, in 1899. Less than two years later, McKinley succumbed to an assassin's bullet and his second vice president, Theodore Roosevelt, succeeded him.

Thomas R. Marshall, vice president under Woodrow Wilson, once remarked that he was the "great listener since the Sphinx sat itself down in the Lybian desert."

ALTHOUGH the Constitution makes the vice president "the president of the Senate" and provides no other tasks for him, some holders of this office have been more active. They have done a good deal of speechmaking—outside the Senate—and have headed various governmental bodies, the latter at the request of the Chief Executive. Sherman was the last vice president to die in office. Inaugurated with William Howard Taft in 1909, he passed away Oct. 30, 1912.

Rep. Joseph Martin

The vice president has only two official duties to perform. He is the presiding officer of the Senate and votes in case of a tie. Whenever he tires of wielding the gavel, he invites one of the senators to take over for him.

However, Congress has taken cognizance of the possibility that this could occur. In that event, the speaker of the House of Representatives would become President.

Congressman Sam Rayburn of Texas is the present House speaker. He is 74 years old. When the next President takes the oath of office Jan. 21, 1957, either he or Congressman Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, will probably be speaker. Rayburn will be 75 on Jan. 6. Martin will be 72.

Is the vice presidency a more killing job than that of President? Few people would think so. Yet history records the fact that the second highest office has proven more hazardous than the presidency.

Never in American history have both a President and vice president died in office nor has a President ever succumbed while the second highest office was vacant.

Another of the more important subjects CHS offers to the students is public speaking. The advantages of good speech are very obvious. In addition to teaching boys and girls to speak publicly, the students develop a better quality in their voices. Voices gain volume, and students learn the correct pronunciation of words.

Besides learning to make speeches, the students do other types of things in the classroom. They devote the beginning of the year to informal speeches, conversations, interviews, selecting talks, and discussions. They learn to debate; the method of parliamentary procedure, which they may need if they belong to any club or group; oral reading; fundamentals of dramatic work; radio and television work.

They also use the tape recorder. This is a sure way of learning their faults and then noting the improvements they make. Almost without exception the speech students agree that they are much at ease in front of others, whether they are delivering a formal speech, stating a motion at a business meeting, or merely having all eyes fixed on them when walking across a room.

They have developed "eye contact" and are much less nervous in a speaking situation.

School Notes

CIRCLEVILLE HIGH

Journalism is another one of the many subjects offered to the students of Circleville High School. The opportunities in the journalism field are numerous.

Though the study of journalism, students improve their writings, put the English they have learned to use, and learn to be clear thinkers.

It also prepares them for work on the school paper, teaches them to criticize, helps them meet people through interviews. Assignments must be done quickly and on time.

One main advantage of journalism is creating a desire to go on in the field of reporting.

Students learn to express themselves in the editorials they write. Sometimes too, they rewrite articles, giving their own interpretation of current affairs.

Journalism classes enjoy quite a few activities each year. Students write articles printed in the newspaper; they visit some printing operation, such as the newspaper office; and they study many different newspapers.

The Circleville Herald has cooperated in publishing the better articles in the "School Notes" column.

Another of the more important subjects CHS offers to the students is public speaking. The advantages of good speech are very obvious. In addition to teaching boys and girls to speak publicly, the students develop a better quality in their voices. Voices gain volume, and students learn the correct pronunciation of words.

Besides learning to make speeches, the students do other types of things in the classroom. They devote the beginning of the year to informal speeches, conversations, interviews, selecting talks, and discussions. They learn to debate; the method of parliamentary procedure, which they may need if they belong to any club or group; oral reading; fundamentals of dramatic work; radio and television work.

They also use the tape recorder. This is a sure way of learning their faults and then noting the improvements they make.

Almost without exception the speech students agree that they are much at ease in front of others, whether they are delivering a formal speech, stating a motion at a business meeting, or merely having all eyes fixed on them when walking across a room.

They have developed "eye contact" and are much less nervous in a speaking situation.

The immediate aim of science as taught at CHS is to present to the pupil in an orderly and appealing way the truths, principles, and laws necessary to give him an understanding and appreciation of his environment.

A person needs science to help him adjust to this new scientific world. Science is also needed to make progress, especially in raising the standard of living, and in making life easier in this world.

In high school science, the student not only learns facts from texts, but also learns through demonstration. Supplemental and group projects also broaden the scope and interest in the course.

Our world at peace or at war is highly technical. We need science to understand what is being done and also to learn better ways of doing things.

Biology, the science of life, includes a knowledge of plants and animals, including man.

It deals with the physical, makeup of all living things, the principles which govern life, and the relation of living things to their surroundings and to each other. Many CHS students find it one of their favorite studies.

Biology has many purposes. We first direct our study in it to disease, its causes, treatment and prevention. By studying our own bodies, we can maintain good health through proper living habits.

Other phases of biology concern the improvement of our relationship with other living things. We depend directly on plants and animals for food, clothing, shelter, and many other necessities of life.

By controlling and improving the plants and animals which supply these necessities, we gain a tremendous advantage in the world of life.

Advantages of field trips and laboratory work add to the interest of this course.

Biology gives the student a great advantage in college if he pursues a scientific course. If the student does not go to college his biology course will be an advantage in furnishing necessary practical knowledge of plants and animals.

Mike, The Parrot, Now 'Michelle'

CHICAGO (P)—Mike, a parrot, has been at the Anti-Cruelty Society's quarters 15 years.

The bird has been a favorite of many visiting school kids and has acquired a vocabulary of more than 30 words.

But nothing the feathered favorite has said caused more startled reaction than one bit of action today.

Mike laid an egg. And the society changed the parrot's name to Michelle.

CONGRESS

Mr. Harvard F. Vallance, Dean Emeritus, Graduate School, Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, today released a statement, — ENDORSING THE CANDIDACY OF — ALBERT L. DANIELS for CONGRESS — which reads as follows:

"On his record in the Ohio Legislature, — ALBERT L. DANIELS — deserves the unqualified support of every friend of EDUCATION. — TEACHERS owe him a special debt. No other individual has done more for the Schools of our State than has — ALBERT L. DANIELS. Here is his record:

- 1.—In 1945 he sponsored THE FIRST increase in the School Foundation Program.
- 2.—In 1947 he sponsored H. B. No. 48 which raised the State appropriation—FIFTY FOUR MILLION DOLLARS—for the two-year period. One result of this legislation was SALARY INCREASES of from $300 to $1000—FOR EVERY TEACHER in the Sixth Congressional District.
- 3.—In the sessions of the Ohio Senate of 1949 and 1951 he introduced Bills which resulted in GREATLY IMPROVED educational facilities FOR OHIO'S SCHOOL CHILDREN. In many instances he FOUGHT SINGLE-HANDEDLY and SUCCESSFULLY for their passage.

His record of School legislation alone might not justify ALBERT L. DANIELS' right to a seat in Congress — but when you add to his achievements in the fields of AGRICULTURE, CONSERVATION, CLEAN ELECTION LAWS, VETERANS, OLD AGE PENSIONS, LAKES AND PARKS, — you can support him on the basis of his broad interests in legislation — FOR THE COMMON GOOD. — ALBERT L. DANIELS has proved himself the friend, not only of the Schools, but of all worthy interests of the people of our State. He has earned and deserves the support of all right-thinking persons.

Therefore, as a native OF THE SIXTH DISTRICT (I was born and grew up in Adams County, — as one who has given a life-time of service to education, AS A LIFE-LONG MEMBER OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY, and as a Past President of the Ohio Education Association (1947), I urge you to support BY YOUR VOICE AND YOUR VOTE, — ALBERT L. DANIELS for the Republican nomination FOR CONGRESS from the Sixth Ohio District in the coming Primary Election and in the election next November."

Bosox Pilot Proven Correct In Prediction

New Reserve Strength Pays Off As Higgins' Men Win 4 Out Of 5

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Put down Manager Mike Higgins of the Boston Red Sox as one of the better training camp prophets.

It's hopeless to try to win without plenty of good reserves these days," he said in Sarasota, Fla., last February. "And that's why we'll be a better club this year. No matter how I use Mickey Vernon and Norm Zaichin around first base, we will be better off because one or the other always will be on the bench rested and ready to go to bat. And I feel certain a couple of boys I had at Louisville are ready to help us. Don Buddin, a shortstop, and Frank Malzone at third."

His prophecy came true Friday as the Red Sox won their fourth game in five starts, beating Detroit 6-4 with a home run by Zaichin for the first run and three hits by Buddin, including a two-run single that put the Sox ahead to stay in the fourth inning.

Vernon didn't play but he's been hitting .302 with a couple of important homers and nine runs batted in. Malzone is hitting only .250, but he homered and fielded brilliantly in Thursday's game.

The victory left Boston in fourth place, a distinct improvement over its 9-12 record a year ago today.

The New York Yankees held first place by beating Kansas City 10-6 with a four-run eighth inning. The Chicago White Sox pulled into a percentage tie for first with the Yanks as Dick Donovan turned back Washington 5-2, but they trail by a game on a won and lost basis. The two clubs clash in a doubleheader Sunday in Yankee Stadium.

Baltimore made the most of three hits and erratic pitching and catching by Cleveland to nip the Tribe 4-3 and thereby crawl out of the American League cellar. Detroit is the new occupant.

Milwaukee and St. Louis remained in a virtual tie for the National League lead, but Brooklyn dropped out, as the Braves nipped the New York Giants 3-2 in 10 innings and the Dodgers handed the Cardinals five gift runs in one inning for a 10-3 St. Louis victory.

Art Fowler pitched Cincinnati to a 4-3 victory over Pittsburgh despite Frank Thomas' seventh home run of the campaign, good for two runs. But a two-run homer by Chicago's Ernie Banks was enough to hand Robin Roberts of Philadelphia his first defeat of the season. Bob Rush outpitched the Philly ace 2-1.

Bobby Thomson, Del Crandall, Johnny Logan and Eddie Mathews shared the starring roles for the Braves. With the Braves trailing 2-1 in the last of the ninth, Thomson singled, moved around on a sacrifice and infield out then romped home as Crandall drove out a double on a 3-2 pitch. Mathews singled home Logan with the winning run in the 10th after the shortstop singled and moved to second on a passed ball.

Dave Jolly, pitching the 10th in relief of Lew Burdette, pitched up the win while Johnny Antonelli was the loser. He had doubled and scored the run that put the Giants ahead at 2-1 in the eighth.

The Dodgers threw the ball all over Busch Stadium in St. Louis in the sixth inning as the Cards came up with seven runs on only four hits. Wild throws by veteran shortstop PeeWee Reese and rookie pitcher Chuck Templeton, a wild pitch by relief pitcher Ed Rebeck and a balk by Sandy Koufax, third Dodger chucker of the inning, made it easy for the Cardinals. Rip Repulski had a solo homer for the winners.

Fowler gave up only six hits in winning his second game for the Redlegs, who had Ted Klusowski back in the lineup after a week's rest on the bench. Klu went 0 for 4, however, and Roy McMillan drove in the winning runs with a two-run single.

Rush ended a 14-game personal losing streak to Philadelphia and also snapped a seven-game skein of defeats for the Cubs.

City Man's Brother Sets Torrid Pace As Pirate Hurler

Bob Friend, brother of Cincinnati's Ray Friend, is setting a torrid pace in the National League while twirling for the usually cellar dwelling Pittsburgh Pirates.

Last year, although he had one of the best earned run averages, his won-lost record did not show up as well as it should have. The Pirates simply could not hit for him.

This year, the Smoky City slugger have banged out the necessary bingles. As a matter of fact, Friend and the Pirates snapped a six-game winning streak of the Cincinnati Reds.

Many observers have commented that with any other team but the Pirates Friend would be one of the greatest pitchers in the National League. May be the Pirates will see to that this year on their own.

Tug Wilson 'Pleased' As OSU Accepts Penalty Gracefully

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, Western Conference commissioner, is "pleased and grateful" for what he termed Ohio State University's gentlemanly and dignified acceptance of the one-year probation slapped on the university a week ago.

Wilson, who imposed the penalty for infractions of the athletic code, addressed some 1,000 coaches Friday night on the campus at a banquet sponsored by the athletic department as part of its silver anniversary football clinic.

Some mention was made of the probation, in quiet vein, by several speakers including Wilson, President Howard Bevis and Coach Woody Hayes who had invited the commissioner to address the group.

All the university officials rose to shake hands with Wilson as he arrived a bit late at the speakers' table, but all concerned were slightly twisted grins. The invitation to Wilson was extended several weeks ago and reiterated after the probation was ordered.

Hayes departed for his weekly television show before Wilson spoke, taking clinic speakers Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma and Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech with him. Accusations that Hayes had given money or made small loans to his players led to the probation, and the Buck mentor got the evening's big laugh as he tag-lined:

"I'm changing sponsors on my television show this year. And I'd like to have you know my new one is the ——— Loan Co."

Wilson confined most of his remarks to the Olympics next winter in Australia.

Following the dinner he said he was "pleased and grateful for the university's gentlemanly and dignified acceptance of the penalty."

The Ohio High School Football Coaches Assn., in annual session, named Bill Kidd of New Philadelphia as president. Mel Knowlton of Alliance, 1954 coach of the year, was named first vice president, and Chuck Thackara of Hamilton third vice president.

The coaches awarded trophies to Knowlton, coach of the northern all-stars last August at Mansfield, and his assistants, Herb Redding of Gibsonburg, Seraph Pope of Lima, and Ralph Robinette of Youngstown Rayen, and to the southern staff of Larry Peterson of Lancaster, Paul Keltner of Cambridge, Howie Thomas of Cincinnati Hughes, and Marv McCollum of Seven Mile.

The clinic winds up today with the Ohio State gridders battling each other in a full-length game in the stadium, with 10,000 fans due to be on hand.

The high school coaches awarded life-time honorary memberships to nine men, including Sky Wharton of Coshocton, Doyt Perry of Bowling Green State U., and Pete Howison of Marion.

Directors and alternates from 12 of the 16 coaching regions were also elected. They included:

Cincy Reds Enjoying Air In 3rd Place

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Redlegs are breathing the heady atmosphere of third place on the National League ladder today.

The Reds, in last place a week ago, edged past the Pittsburgh Pirates last night 4-3, but the vaunted Red hitters fared badly.

It was men like shortstop Roy McMillan who held the key to the Redleg scoring.

McMillan's shrewdly placed bunt in the fifth inning helped set up the first two Redleg runs.

McMillan also rapped out a single in the sixth inning that brought Wally Post and Ray Jablonski home with the tying and winning runs.

The wiry Cincinnati shortstop is hitting at a .340 clip this season, with 18 pokes in 53 times at bat.

But Redleg Manager Birdie Tebbets saves his greatest praise for McMillan's work in the field. "McMillan is one of the finest defensive shortstops I've seen in the last 20 years," the manager said.

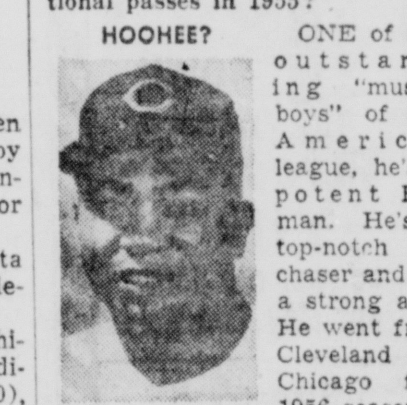

Those Redleg muscle men, Gus Bell, Jablonski and Ted Klusowski, failed to get a hit last night. The game set the Redlegs back on the winning track after Pittsburgh cut off their win streak at six straight on Thursday.

Bowling Scores Very Wild In Indian Defeat

BALTIMORE (AP)—Wilder than the stormy night, Herb Score, the Cleveland Indians' young southpaw, blew a 4-3 decision to the Baltimore Orioles last night.

A strong wind behind him was supposed to help his fast ball, but Score walked the first two batters. Then two pitches got past catcher Hal Naragon, and Baltimore led 2-0 without a hit.

Score set the Orioles down in order in the second. But in the third he walked the Baltimore pitcher, Jim Wilson, and Bobby Adams singled through short and Chuck Diering laid down a bunt to load the bases.

Score uncorked a wild pitch to let one run in, and walked Dave Philley to load the bases again. Gus Triandos smashed a grounder toward left, and although Al Rosen made a diving stop he couldn't make a throw and another run was in.

Rosen came up with the ball and made a stab at Diering, running from second to third. Rosen was ejected for arguing too strongly that Diering stepped out of the base path.

Manager Al Lopez sent in Rudy Regalado to replace Rosen and Cal McLish to relieve Score. McLish retired the side on a pop fly and a double play. McLish, Sal Maglie and Ray Narleski held the Orioles hitless after Score left.

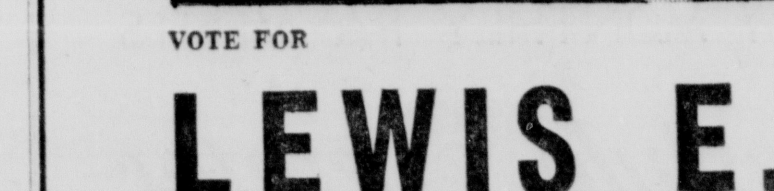

The Indians scored three runs in the fourth on a hit batsman, singles by Chico Carrasquel and

Times Square On Program At Fayette Sulky Matinee

WASHINGTON C. H. — Times Square, Ohio's Harness Horse of the Year in 1955, will be exhibited by owner Eddie Kirk as a feature of the annual Lions Club matinee harness racing program at the Fayette County fairgrounds here Sunday. Post time for the first of eight races is 1:30 p. m.

Winner of the $75,000 American Pacing Classic at Hollywood Park last fall, Times Square has wintered in fine form at the local track where he is being prepared for a campaign which will see him tackle the nation's toughest in a series of major stakes from coast to coast. His exhibition appearance will be one of the few opportunities for Ohio fans to see him this year.

All proceeds from the matinee program will go to the Lions Club sight and welfare funds which have benefitted substantially since the annual matinee show was instituted four years ago.

Horses slated to appear in action are those trotters and pacers which wintered at the local track. Standardbreds from nearby training centers also will race.

General chairman for the matinee is Kirk.

The only outside experts called upon to aid in the project are for the sound system and the presiding judge. The club has a licensed presiding judge, John Sagar, in its ranks, but he'll be serving as the starter in Paul Young's starting gate. This is the same gate that was used at Magnolia Park in New Orleans until last week when that race meeting closed.

Complete plans have been made to handle a large crowd. The crew which must clean out the winter accumulation of dirt from the grandstand and mow the lawn around it already is at work.

The only admission charge will be for adults. All children under high school age will be admitted free and all grandstand seats are free. The box seats will go on sale Sunday prior to the racing and will be on a "first come first served" basis.

This being the fourth annual

Troutman Breaks Shot Put Record

Genial George Troutman, former Circleville High School athlete, broke another record this week.

As his Capital University team was taking a 76-51 defeat from Wooster, Troutman set a new Cap field record when he put the shot 47'11 1/2". However, this was below his record effort of 50'6".

Scioto Beats Iberia 7 To 4 On Friday In District Tourney

Scioto Township advanced a notch in the District Class B baseball tournament in Columbus by beating Iberia 7 to 4 Friday. The game had been postponed from Thursday because of wet grounds.

The Buffaloes will meet Pleasant Township Monday at 4 p. m. The game is set for Gowdy Diamond No. 17 in Columbus.

Pickaway County's other entry in Class B play, Ashville, was defeated in the opening round. The Broncos took it on the chin from Granville 13 to 1.

Scioto and Ashville will meet soon to decide the winner of the Pickaway County title. However, this will have to wait until Scioto finishes playing in the district tournament.

Scioto's Del Neff struck out seven and got a homer and a double. He gave up five hits. Scioto batted out nine safeties.

CLEVELAND'S INDIANS, not noted for speed and daring on the base paths, have a new look this season. It is illustrated above in the sixth inning of the Cleveland home opener in the Stadium, in which the Tribe defeated the Detroit Tigers, 3-1. Newly-acquired shortstop Chico Carrasquel (17) stretches a single into a double on a slow roller into left field in the sixth inning, then scores on Catcher Jim Hegan's hit. Making the stab is Second Baseman Reno Bertoia. (International)

This Is What District Vets Want To Know

(Veterans who have a question of interest to ex-servicemen should pass it along to Pickaway County Veterans Service Officer Jim Shea. His offices are in the basement of the courthouse at Circleville.)

Q—I want a G I business loan to be insured, rather than guaranteed by the VA. What is the maximum rate of interest on insured non-realty loans?

A—The interest may not exceed a 3 percent discount rate, or an equivalent simple interest rate of 5.7 percent a year.

Q—If I move to Oregon because "I like it out there," can I get another G I loan after I sell my G I house here?

A—No. "I like it out there" does not fall in the class which allows the VA to exclude your previous G I loan.

Q—I would like to go to Europe and study cooking at one of the "world famous" restaurants, possibly in France. Can this be arranged?

A—No, it cannot. Foreign education opportunities are limited to colleges and universities for the purposes outlined in Public Law 550.

Q—I was severely wounded during combat in Korea. Is there a law other than Public Law 550 under which I may train as a disabled veteran?

A—Yes, there is. Public Law 894 provides training for handicapped veterans of the Korean conflict, based on the following:

1—If they suffered a service-connected disability in active service on or after June 27, 1950, and on or before Jan. 31, 1955, which would entitle them to compensation.

2—If they were discharged or released under conditions other than dishonorable.

3—If the Veterans Administration determines they need vocational training to overcome their handicap.

All three of the above conditions must be met in order to be eligible for training under Public Law 894.

Q—May I reinstate my lapsed term national service life insurance policy?

A—Lapsed term policies may be reinstated before the end of the term period by meeting VA health requirements and by paying two monthly premiums.

Q—How about expired term national service life insurance?

A—Expired insurance cannot be reinstated.

OSU Alumni Aide Gets Full Backing

COLUMBUS (AP)—Jack Fullen, secretary of the Ohio State University Alumni Assn., was given a vote of confidence yesterday by the group's directors.

Fullen, who will be 56 Tuesday,

contributed some of the information used in a national sports magazine last October. The article led to an investigation of Ohio State by the Big Ten Conference and the school's subsequent one-year probation for infractions of the athletic code.

British Hint Frogman Held By Russians

LONDON (AP)—London newspapers speculated Friday that a missing British Frogman may have been caught by Russian sailors while engaged in underwater spying on the cruiser which brought "B and K" to London.

The Daily Sketch quoted an unnamed royal navy officer as saying the diver, Cmdr. Lionel Crabb, may have been a prisoner on the Ordzhonikidze when it sailed off last week with Soviet Premier Bulganin and Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev.

Crabb, 49, disappeared April 19. That was the day after the cruiser arrived in Portsmouth harbor with the barnstorming Kremlin chiefs.

The Admiralty announced last week that Crabb was "missing and presumed drowned" on a secret underwater experiment off Portsmouth, but his body has not been found.

The Admiralty confirmed it had hired Crabb, a retired member of the naval service, but declined to say what kind of work he was doing.

The Daily Telegraph suggested that Crabb, who had been working as a skin diver with foot fins and an oxygen tank, was "possibly checking on the Asdic apparatus underneath the Russian cruiser."

Asdic is a sound system for detecting submarines.

The Telegraph said Crabb also visited Portsmouth six months ago when two Russian cruisers and four destroyers were there.

Buck Baseballers Leading Big Ten

CHICAGO (AP)—Ohio State's defending champions retained the only unbeaten team in the Big Ten baseball race as Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana all suffered initial losses yesterday.

Galen Cisco pitched and batted the Buckeyes into undisputed possession of first place as the champions walloped Indiana, 7-1.

Illinois suffered its first loss by dropping a 10-inning 3-2 decision to Minnesota; Michigan State went 15 innings to beat Wisconsin, 11-6; Michigan edged Northwestern, 3-2, and Iowa shoved Purdue into the cellar, 2-1.

Ohio Grid Pilots Slated For Clinic

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio's high school football coaches, some 800 of them, converged here today for Ohio State University's annual grid clinic.

The mentors opened the three-day silver anniversary festivities last night with the annual north-south all-star game the big topic of conversation.

Jimmy Robinson of Canton Lehigh, who will direct the annual all-senior tilt and clinic in Canton the week of Aug. 12, told the board of directors of the Ohio High School Football Coaches Assn. that 8,000 tickets had been sold for the Aug. 17 contest and that he looked for the biggest attendance in history.

Finsterwald Clings To Tournament Tie

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Dow Finsterwald and Peter Thomson, a couple of golf's winning sophomores, held the 36-hole lead in the $25,000 Colonial National Invitation Tournament today because Ben Hogan lost his touch.

While Finsterwald, the little man

from Athens, Ohio, and Thomson, 26, who already holds two British Open championships, were taking 2-over-par 72s for 141 yesterday, Hogan was shooting one of his finest games from tee to carpet only to miss birdie putts on 14 greens. Hogan, the man who has won four National Open and four Colonial championships, wound up with a similar score but was a stroke back.

Finals Coming Up In Women's Test

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—Veteran Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore and golf newcomer Wanda Sanches of Baton Rouge, La., faced each other here today for the 41st Southern Women's Amateur title.

Miss Downey who has been playing tournament golf for years, is a stocky 30-year-old star with long drive and precision putting.

Miss Sanches, playing in this event for the first time, also is a gal with long drives. The weak part of her game is her putting. She is 26, tall and timid.

The match was regarded as a tossup as the two aces started their 36-hole tie test over the 6,312-yard par 74 Cascades Course.

Design For Airpower

(Editor's Note: This column is furnished as a public service, by the Office of Information Services, Air Research and Development Command, U. S. Air Force.)

Cool Heads, Hot Clouds

A BLINDING FLASH... a thundering blast... a boiling cloud mushrooming skywards... another atomic test is over. Minutes after the fearful cloud is born, Air Force pilots re on its heels, probing its edges, and dipping into it. Planes operated by ARDC's Special Weapons Center track the atomic cloud and send out warnings if it changes course. Sometimes, due to wind shifts the cloud direction may be completely reversed.

Other planes skim the cloud or streak through it, collecting samples for scientific purposes.

Many precautions are taken to protect the dogged cloud-chasers and to make sure that they aren't exposed to too much radiation. After return, crewmen and planes alike are washed down to remove all traces of residue. Pilots of the more heavily exposed sampling planes may not even climb out. They are lifted out with a forklift on wooden platform so they won't touch the outside of the aircraft.

It takes cool heads to play with hot clouds, but the most important result achieved is the knowledge that men can fly around and even in atomic clouds without undue risk. They have brought home dramatic proof that atomic clouds are not as dangerous as we imagined them to be.

Stratosphere Dinner

HIGH-FLYING JETS may soon add "room service" for pilots on long missions. Breathing dry oxygen and perspiring freely under several layers of high-altitude clothing, pilots can suffer bad thirst as their bodies dry out.

But the men dressed for stratosphere travel can't drink like they would normally, because their heads are inclosed in "space helmets" with a tight-fitting plastic visor or "face-piece."

Air Force scientists solved this problem simply by using a plastic hose to carry liquid from a container behind the seat through an airtight rubber gasket in the face-piece.

If the pilot gets thirsty, he pushes a leak-proof fitting at one end of the hose into the face-piece, permitting the flow of water, milk foods or juices—which ever the container provides. Eventually, liquid meat items may be added.

Experiments up to 40,000 feet have been successful in altitude chambers. Thirst-quenching and nourishing dinners over 50,000 feet appear possible, with a beautiful view as an added attraction.

A Tisket, A Tasket

SAVING PILOTS' LIVES is the most modern and important use for the old-fashioned basket of history and song. Lowered from a helicopter, a special basket under development for the Air Force will literally scoop up downed airmen from the water in seconds.

During the Korean War, many airmen who had crashed or parachuted into the ocean were saved by helicopters of the Air Rescue Service. But unless they were strong enough to climb up the rope ladder to the hovering "egg-beater," one of its crew had to jump into the water, place a harness around the survivor, have him hauled aboard, climb back himself.

Experimenting with nets, baskets and combinations of both, engineers studied more practical and quicker methods for water rescues. Their final design should permit a helicopter pilot to smoothly pick up even an unconscious man without sending a crewman down to him.

When perfected, the combination basket-net will work so swiftly that a survivor will be riding "upstairs" in it before he could recite, "A tisket... a tasket."

Facts and Figures
MOST OF THE 35 million Americans who flew over 72,000 miles of Civil Aeronautics Airways last year were unaware that 1,800 electronics specialists were checking their flights from city to city.

In 1799, Mme. Jeanne Garnerin of France became the first woman to make a solo flight in a balloon.

During the Berlin Airlift of 1948-1949, USAF controlled planes made more than 266,600 flights to deliver over two million tons of food, fuel and supplies, enough to support over two million Berliners.

To Bolster Teaching Force 3-Point Program Offered

Editor's Note: Following is the last in a pair of articles dealing with the acute shortage of teachers in Ohio's public school system.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The state department of education has a three-point program designed to bolster Ohio's teaching force.

The department knows Ohio will need 8,500 teachers next year. It knows, too, that the state has a potential supply of only 6,700.

What then, is being done to ease the expected shortage of approximately 1,800 teachers next year?

The department says it plans to cope with the problem through certification, scholarship and recruitment programs.

Along the lines of certification, the department has opened the door to the teaching field to any person holding a bachelor of arts or science degree.

Such a person, by taking four prescribed courses in a 12-week summer session, may be granted a temporary certificate for teaching on the elementary level.

The standard certificate is issued when 30 semester hours have been completed, this coming at the rate of six semester hours of additional training each year until the total has been reached.

Harold J. Bowers, director of teacher training, says since 1950, this program has provided Ohio with from 100 to 300 teachers a year. Most of these teachers, Bowers said, are housewives who hold college degrees which did not include preparation for teaching.

"These housewives volunteered to take the program in the interest of serving the schools in their community," Bowers said.

The department also is interested in drawing into the teaching field those persons who hold valid or expired teaching certificates. Approximately one-third of those prepared to teach never do so.

"If these persons were to return to the classroom there would be an ample supply of teachers and possibly a surplus," Bowers contends.

Expired certificates may be renewed by completion of a six semester hour refresher course.

Currently, almost 1,000 teachers a year return to teaching after completing the refresher course.

Bowers said superintendents are being urged to contact persons who can be persuaded to return to teaching under these conditions.

Each year, Ohio is certifying more and more teachers from other states. In 1955, more than 2,900 from out-of-state were certified but fewer than one-half actually were employed.

"If the preparation of these applicants is substantially equivalent to that required in Ohio colleges, the standard provisional certificate is issued. If only minor deficiencies exist, a temporary certificate is issued," Bowers said.

Trainee Head For Guard Unit Stresses Preparedness Need

"The better trained a soldier, the better are his chances for survival."

This statement was made today by Lt. Robert Shaw, in charge of training for the Third Battalion, 166th Regimental Combat Team, Ohio National Guard. He urged young men of Circleville to enlist in their local Guard unit.

Shaw said: "While we all hope for lasting peace, we must remain prepared and train our young citizen-soldiers to assure a strong and ready reserve to back up our active Army."

"Therefore, as Americans we are dedicated to keeping our country free from enemy aggression. And also to keep our soldiers so well trained that when they enter combat, they are assured that they have had the best training possible and will be able to take care of themselves. This being so, the more training a young man can get, the better are his chances on the battlefield."

SHAW POINTED out that every American man between the ages of 18½ and 28 has a military obligation to his country. Shaw said: "This obligation is to enlist in a reserve organization, learn all he can about military life and the fundamentals of military operation."

"It behooves all of us therefore, to remain in a well trained status whereby we will be better able to protect our families and country, if that time must come."

The fundamental principles of the Red Cross were laid down in a conference in Geneva, Switzerland, in 1863.

Women To Elect Presidents, Woman GOPster Convinced

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor From now on it's the women who will elect the presidents, says a brisk young woman who is chairman of the 1956 election campaign committee of the Women's National Republican Club.

Jacqueline Gutwillig first became sold on the importance of public service during the war, when she was in Europe as a lieutenant colonel with the Department of Psychological Warfare, attached to Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters. Her husband, meanwhile, was a major in the Air Force, stationed in India.

Jacqueline puts in a full working day five days a week at the club headquarters in New York, cooperating with the party's local, state and national committees and contacting all national women's organizations urging them to get their members out to register and vote.

"In the last presidential election, 52 per cent of the total voters were women," she says. "In the country there is a potential of two million more women voters than men. That's a big margin, and a big responsibility."

Young Mrs. Gutwillig has found political work exciting and engrossing, and urges more women to try it.

"If you've never done anything of the sort before," she says, "the way to start is to go to the local district leader or club of the party of your choice."

"You may be sure you will be greeted with enthusiasm and gratitude, and will be given all the work you have time or energy for. Political organizations need all the intelligent women workers they can get. If you can't do anything else you can address envelopes. Or you can go out and ring doorbells. You can offer your car to drive people to the polls. You can act as a baby sitter for mothers who want to go out and vote."

"If you are good at public speaking, you can go out on sound trucks and make election speeches."

Missourian Finds Ohio Girl's Effects

LEBANON, Mo. (AP)—The discovery of abandoned clothing and other items including identification papers near here touched off a search today for Miss Frances Kaye Fea, a 19-year-old Oxford, Ohio, girl.

The clothing, personal papers, a handbag, two billfolds, purse and a portable radio were found on a dead end country road about three miles west of this south-central Missouri city yesterday afternoon by Burnard Meeth, a farmer.

LaCade County Sheriff Neil Brown said a call to Ward Williams of the Procter and Gamble Corp. in Cincinnati verified information in the identification papers that a Miss Fea was employed there.

Brown said Williams told him that Miss Fea supposedly boarded a bus in Cincinnati late Wednesday en route to Los Angeles in connection with her work.

Brown said a thorough search of the area where the clothing and papers were found would be made. He also said authorities would attempt to establish if Miss Fea had actually boarded the bus and when she was last seen.

About 2,500,000 people now live in mobile homes. This house trailer population is enough to make it the third largest U. S. city, out-ranked only by New York and Chicago.

BIG JET SET TO DROP TEST H-BOMB

Lausche Says O'Neill Stand Is Ill-Advised

Chief Denies State Too Slow In Selling Bonds For Buildings

COLUMBUS (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche responded sharply last night to charges that his administration has been slow to sell bonds authorized for a multi-million-dollar public building program.

The criticism has come recently from Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

Lausche said O'Neill "was not in possession of the facts. If he were, he would never have made the attack he did."

Zoyd M. Flaler, state public works director, said that selling bonds at this time under the $150 million bond issue authorized by Ohio voters last November would be "a waste of taxpayers' money."

Flaler said the bond money "will not be needed until after the plans and specifications for buildings under the program have been completed." He added that architects have been hired to prepare plans for $32,864,000 worth of buildings.

BORROWING money now, he continued—"money that will not be needed for the next seven or eight months"—could bring complaints from the public. Especially, he added, "at the high rate of interest now being charged."

In another vein, Lausche repeated that he regards his chances for presidential nomination as "practically nil."

The five-term Democratic governor, unopposed for his party's nomination for U. S. senator, said he would not be stubborn in releasing his favorite son's delegates at the Democratic National Convention next August.

The state chairman of the Democratic Party in Ohio also was in the news. Eugene H. Hanhart of Dover said he will step down from the post when the new Democratic State Executive Committee meets later this month.

Military Giving Up Posts In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Military men are slated to relinquish rule to civilians in three Argentine provinces underscoring the pledge of Juan D. Peron's successors to return the government to civilian control.

The office of Argentina's provisional president, Gen. Pedro Aramburu, said the military administrations of Salta, San Luis and La Rioja provinces will be replaced by civilians.

In the wake of the upheaval which toppled Peron's government last fall, the rebels placed army, navy and air force men in the top positions.

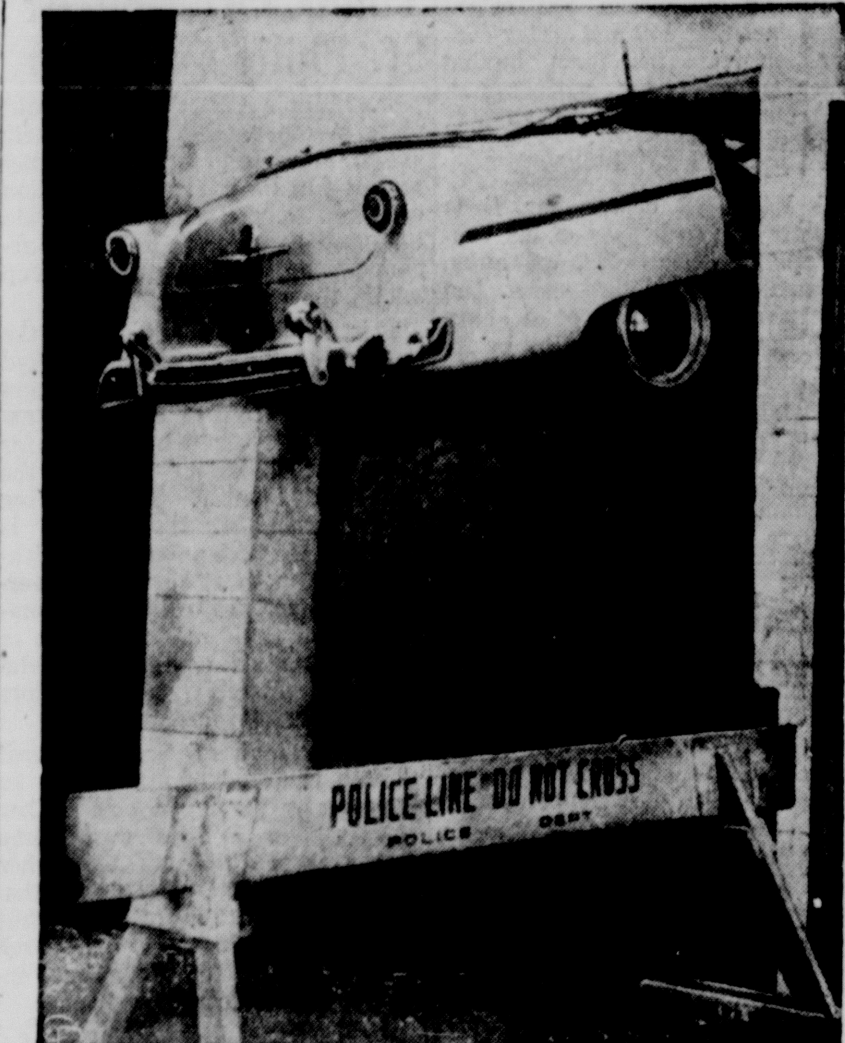

Ike's Health, Nixon's Ethics Under New Democratic Fire

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
President Eisenhower's physical stamina and Vice President Nixon's political ethics came under critical appraisal by national Democratic leaders yesterday.

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler, addressing a mock party convention at the University of Wisconsin, said that Eisenhower "by his own admission, is unable to devote his full energies to the job of President."

Butler's new shaft came about a dozen hours after Eisenhower had assured his news conference in Washington that "the schedule I am now working on, certainly as far as the doctors say, I can continue indefinitely." The President said he might delegate somebody to take action, "but I will take the gaff."

Adlai Stevenson, campaigning near Nixon's home in Southern California, read a formal statement saying Nixon was "poisoned" by four successive election campaigns. Stevenson said he was

Methodist Chiefs Approve Women As Official Pastors

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The Methodist Church today had a new kind of regular ministers--women.

They're now eligible to join the ranks of the official clergy of America's largest Protestant denomination.

The church's law-making General Conference gave its sanction yesterday after hours of turbulent see-saw debate.

It was the climax of years of contention within the church over the fitness of women to serve full-fledged pastoral posts.

After the decision, Dr. Georgia Harkness, a Berkeley, Calif., theological professor who had been in the forefront of the struggle for equal clerical status for women, rose and walked to a microphone.

She said some people had been wondering why she took no part in the final verbal battle.

"The Bible says," she added, "that there is a time to speak and a time to be silent. This was the time for me to be silent." She smiled and sat down.

BUT FEW OTHERS had been silent in the whirl of proposals and counter-proposals that surged about the subject of women and their qualifications as ministers.

It was a move by Dr. Zach T. Johnson, president of Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., that finally was approved, putting women on par with men in filling the church's 40,000 pulpits.

There had been more than 2,000 varying propositions on the subject filled before the two-week church legislative meeting began.

After culling through these, a committee headed by the Rev. James A. Chubb of Grand Island, Neb., recommended extension of full clerical rights only to "unmarried women and widows."

But the measure that went through included married women, too.

The Rev. J. Dewey Muir of Jacksonville, Ill., led the opposition to any relaxation in the church's restrictions on women ministers.

They make excellent preachers, he agreed, but many churches just don't want them anyway; to put them on the regular roster of ministers would create a serious "problem of administration."

"It would open the way to the appointment of women ministers to any church," he said, whether they're wanted or not.

Unlike most Protestant churches which "call" the pastors they want, Methodist pastors are assigned by bishops from among regular ministers in each regional conference. All on this list of regular "traveling ministers" are assured pulpits.

Jackson was jointly indicted with Lemuel Trotter, who is still at large, and Willie Barnett who was found insane and sent to Lima State Hospital.

Johnson was taken to Berger Hospital for treatment of deep lacerations over the left eye lid and on the right knee cap, according to a report from the sheriff's department.

He told the sheriff's department he was traveling south when a car which had apparently been parked along the side of the road suddenly started. Johnson swerved to avoid the car.

Three Wise Men To Guide NATO

Western Foreign Ministers OK Suggestion Made By Americans

PARIS (AP)—The NATO foreign ministers agreed today to entrust their next moves in the battle of peaceful coexistence to "three wise men."

British sources said the ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council endorsed the proposal at a secret session.

U. S. Secretary of State Dulles made the proposal yesterday in a survey of NATO's future in the political and economic domains, saying the organization should be strengthened in those fields.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd urged the appointment of Canada's Lester B. Pearson, Italy's Gaetano Martino, and Norway's Halvard Lange as the "three wise men" to map out a plan for NATO's development.

They are members of the NATO council.

The major goal would be to win over the uncommitted peoples of Asia, Africa and the Middle East to the Western side.

Earlier, a five-man ministerial committee met to draft a manifesto restating NATO's ideals and objectives for the new era of Soviet smiles and economic blandishment aimed at capturing uncommitted millions in Asia, Africa and the Middle East.

THE MINISTERS acted on the basis of an appeal from Dulles to move toward closer political and economic coordination.

The manifesto was expected to be confined to an expression of determination to meet the new Communist challenge on political and economic fronts.

Indications were that the problem of how to do this would be handed over to a committee of two or three Atlantic pact ministers, with orders to report back to the council in the fall.

That was the suggestion of U. S. Secretary of State Dulles, who urged the NATO members to marshal their resources for a 10-year plan to win over the uncommitted peoples of Asia, Africa and the Middle East.

DULLES SAID the West had checked the advance of communism at this point but warned that Russia's trade-and-aid offensive if it succeeds might bring a majority of the world's peoples under Communist rule.

Italy, West Germany, Holland and Canada have advanced various proposals for expanding economic and political cooperation among NATO members.

Foreign Minister Christian Pineau of France suggested creation of a new world economic development agency to help backward countries through the United Nations. That would give Russia a part in the project.

The idea appeared highly unpopular in Washington where President Eisenhower questioned whether it would be practical to channel U. S. aid funds through the U. N.

The job of drafting the manifesto was handed to Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaka of Belgium, who is known for his facility with words.

Brothers Alternate Terms In Prison

BALTIMORE (AP)—Two brothers from Federalburg who pleaded guilty in federal court to failing to file income tax returns for 1952 will serve successive prison terms so that one can keep their farm machinery business going.

Albert Gerardi, 29, and Ernest Gerardi, 38, partners in Gerardi Bros., were sentenced to three months each yesterday.

But Judge Roszel C. Thomsen said he was concerned that their business might disintegrate if both were absent at the same time. So he directed that one of them could delay going to prison until the other gets out.

Albert offered to serve his sentence first.

Execution In Gas Chamber Faces Denver Plane-Bomber

DENVER (AP)—Death in Colorado's gas chamber was decreed last night for John Gilbert Graham, 24, who confessed dynamiting an airliner that hurled his mother and 43 others to death.

Seven men and five women jurors deliberated an hour and 12 minutes before returning a conviction of first degree murder in the death of Graham's mother, Mrs. Daisie E. King, 55.

Graham, father of two, bit his lower lip but otherwise showed no emotion as Dist. Judge Joseph M. McDonald read the death verdict.

He told reporters a moment later: "I'm innocent."

"Of course, we'll appeal," said Charles S. Vigil, one of Graham's three court-appointed lawyers.

Judge McDonald granted the defense 10 days to file a new trial motion. Graham will not be formally sentenced until that motion is heard.

Graham took out two air trip insurance policies on his mother's life naming him the beneficiary. Each would have paid him $37,500.

Bikini Lagoon Tagged As Target Point For Shot Of Nuclear Fury

ENIWETOK (AP)—Men in charge of the first drop of a hydrogen device from an American plane say they are confident the huge B52 will have "more than adequate clearance" to escape unscathed from the nuclear fury it looses.

Officials of Joint Task Force VII, who yesterday fired the first "small" bomb of the 1956 Pacific test series, outlined plans for the scheduled trial of an air-dropped H-bomb described officially as "one of the largest in the series."

Its power is described as "several megatons" or equal to several million tons of TNT.

It thus may be around a thousand times as powerful as the bomb which initiated the "Operation Redwing" series.

Seen by newsmen from 15 miles away, this shot appeared as a brilliant white dot that blossomed almost instantly into a cream, yellow, orange and dull red flash.

Although test officials declined to specify its nature, there was speculation it represented a missile warhead with force equal to 15,000 tons of TNT.

TEST DIRECTOR Dr. William E. Ogle said the thermonuclear bomb, scheduled to go off about noon Monday EST, will burst several thousand feet above sea level over Bikini atoll.

For this shot, called "Cherokee," the observer ship Mt. McKinley will be stationed 32 miles away. A chart showed the aiming point for the bomb will be almost the precise center of Bikini Lagoon, slightly east of the area where target ships were sunk in two previous atomic tests.

Ogle did not disclose the intended height of the B52, America's mightiest bomber, at the time it releases its package.

However, the eight-jet strategic bomber can operate easily well above 40,000 feet. The huge Stratofortress is even faster than its smaller brother, the B47 medium bomber, which is acknowledged officially to have a speed of more than 600 mph.

If the H-bomb is detonated at 8,000 to 10,000 feet the bomber's (Continued on Page Two)

DROODLES

By ROGER PRICE

"ABSENT-MINDED PROFESSOR'S FINGER"

Dr. Schwine has a psychological theory about absent-minded people. He says the reason they forget things is because they can't remember them. And the reason they can't remember them is because they're absent-minded. This is a little too scientific for me but the way Dr. Schwine explains it it sounds okay in my book ("Oodles of Droodles," $1.00). Dr. S. claims that since elephants never forget, the secret of a perfect memory must lie in eating plenty of peanuts and to prove it he plans to eat five pounds of peanuts every day until he remembers everything he's ever forgotten. I hope it works. Maybe I'll get back the $3.00 he borrowed from me on Christmas in 1952.

height and high speed will take it miles away by the time the bomb goes off.

Hours before shot time, the bomb will be lifted into the belly of the B-52. High secrecy will screen it from the eyes of all but the handful of men who "have the need to know."

Other planes, carrying cameras and instruments, will get into the air at the same time.

Because this is a precise test of explosion as well as the mere ordnance behavior of the bomb, detailed arrangements are made for "instrumenting" the detonation. The bomb, falling clear of the bay, will set off a sequence timer on an island of the Bikini atoll group.

That, in turn, will put into operation an array of cameras, pressure measurement instruments and other technical information gadgets to record the split-second history of the explosion.

In addition to the purely instrumental recording of the air-dropped H-bomb, the weapons testers are preparing together some information on what would happen to cities in a thermonuclear attack. Ogle says that "effects of the blast on building structures will be studied."

U.N. Aide Set To Make His Peace Report

ROME (AP)—U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld leaves today for his New York U. N. headquarters to make a detailed personal report on his peace mission to the Middle East.

Hammarskjöld spent part of his final hours here finishing up the report he will deliver to the U. N. Security Council which sent him on the mission to seek ways to ease Arab-Israeli tensions.

In 25 days of personal diplomacy, Hammarskjöld won cease-fire pledges from Israel and four Arab neighbors — Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon. The exact extent to which these pledges commit each state will not be known until the Security Council convenes, probably within a week.

A brief spat between the Arab allies yesterday revealed they do not see eye to eye on how far the agreements bind them.

Lebanon accused Syria of letting her down by granting a cease-fire without a written Israeli promise not to divert irrigation waters from the Jordan River. Later Lebanon accepted the Syrian position that its pledge covered the river issue in another way.

Lebanon indicated earlier that she had agreed to a cease-fire only so long as Israel did not resume the river project dormant for 2½ years. The Israelis have said they will not delay it.

'Driverless' Car Involved In Crash

COLUMBUS (AP)—Mrs. Shirley Ann Borror, 19, was surprised and who could blame her? Her auto was struck by a car that appeared to be driverless.

Three-year-old Timothy Kelly Wolf was probably even more surprised. He was behind the steering wheel of the other car.

Mrs. John L. Wolf was making supper yesterday when her son took the keys to the family automobile, went to the car, locked himself in, stuck the key in the ignition switch and turned over the motor.

From its parking spot in front of the Wolf home the car swung around in reverse and collided with Mrs. Borror's moving auto.

Girls Encouraged To Follow Nursing

Berger Officials Stress Need; Public Invited To View Hospital

Local girl students who plan a career in nursing had added encouragement today as the district prepared to share in nationwide observance of Hospital Day.

Senior girl students planning to follow nursing as a life work were reminded again of the high purpose in their calling. They were also welcomed to serve, after graduation from nursing school, at Berger Hospital.

Official encouragement for local nurses-to-be was timed to coincide with the beginning of National Hospital Week. An open house program is planned at Berger Hospital Sunday afternoon, and an all-day program has also been arranged in and around the Veterans Hospital at Chillicothe.

Administrator Tom Curtis has issued a special invitation to the public to visit Berger Hospital between 2 and 5 p. m. Members of the Berger Hospital guilds will serve as guides to show visitors the many services available under the joint city-county administration.

Many local residents also planned to visit Chillicothe for the celebration in that city.

CURTIS pointed out that a renewed call for more nurses would be appropriate here on the day set aside to open the nationwide observance.

"The shortage of nurses, which has been critical for so long, is one of the most difficult problems we face," Curtis said. "Consequently we are only too glad to encourage young girls who plan to take up nursing, especially girls who live in Circleville and the surrounding county."

In similar vein, Dirtha Dixon, director of nurses at Berger Hospital, said:

"Those of us in the field of nursing and hospital administration are glad to learn of these girls interested in nursing as a career. There is the satisfaction of knowing, when preparation for your chosen career is completed, you may come back to your community and serve in a vital capacity. Therefore, we welcome any future nurses."

After careful study and analysis of the situation, we can state definitely there is a great need for registered professional nurses at Berger Hospital. We need immediately eight registered professional nurses in order to achieve a higher standard of nursing care.

"We appeal to any registered professional nurse in the community, who can work in the hospital either full time or part time, to contact us at once."

"There is another level of bedside nursing employed today which is the licensed practical nurse. We are also interested in employing licensed practical nurses, who fill an important place in the total bedside care."

THE WORDS of encouragement were directed to prospective nurses all over the district, in Circleville and other sections of the county.

A random poll of local nurses-to-be, with Circleville High School seniors chosen to speak for all of the group, put noteworthy accent

Elsewhere on the Ohio political scene, Lt. Gov. John Brown, candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, attacked professional lobbyists who pressure legislators.

The influence of these professional lobbyists, representing vested business interests, "has no place in our state government," Brown said at a party gathering in Cleveland.

TWO SEEKERS of the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, Robert W. Reider and Oscar L. Fleckner, spoke in Cleveland and Dayton, respectively.

Reider, a Port Clinton publisher, lashed out at the GOP for "subjecting to repressive rule the wage earners, minority groups and other average Ohioans."

Fleckner, Columbus businessman, told a Dayton television audience that adults should set a "better example" for youth in an effort to curb juvenile delinquency. He recommended adoption of laws to create financial responsibility of parents for acts of vandalism by their children.

Some Reports Still Lacking On Cancer Funds

TV Is Seen First Export To Moon

COLUMBUS (AP)—A research engineer says that man's first export to the moon probably will be television.

Dr. Dean Woolridge of Los Angeles said yesterday: "Between 10 and 20 years from now, someone is going to shoot a missile to the moon. It probably won't carry anybody, just a TV sender to send images of the surroundings back to earth."

Woolridge, president of the research and production firm of Ramo-Woodridge Corp. of Los Angeles, is here to address the annual conference for engineers and architects at Ohio State University.

He said it is "technically" within man's grasp to shoot a rocket beyond the field of gravity today which would take a speed of about 25,000 mph.

He said the coming satellite program is an indication that actual space travel is not too far off. A satellite travels at nearly the speed of an interspace missile. But he warned that numerous problems must be overcome, and not the least worry of scientists, he said, is a developing lack of technical people to keep the United States forging ahead in scientific fields.

Public Reminded Of Lessons In Soil Stewardship Sunday

Don Archer of the Pickaway County District of the soil conservation service has reminded the public of the lessons to be renewed tomorrow — Soil Stewardship Sunday.

Touching upon the hidden, though true and lasting, link between spiritual betterment and care of the nation's farm soil, Archer called attention to a statement by D. A. Williams, administrator of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service.

Lauding the purpose of Soil Stewardship Sunday, Williams said in part:

"Something more than material benefit is impelling American landowners and operators to become conservation farmers or ranchers. Something more than the established fact that soil and water conservation increases farm buying power is motivating businessmen and countless others to support conservation work."

"A FARMER or rancher finds pleasure in the beauty of his conservation-treated fields, pastures, woodlands, and wildlife areas. And I feel that all the rest of us share his pleasure as we drive by or fly over his acres; or, when we're extra fortunate, have a chance to feel healthy soil or vigorous soil beneath our feet, or join the owner in harvesting a wildlife crop more abundant now than a few years ago."

Murder Rap Faces Boy, 15, In Shootings

SEAT PLEASANT, Md. (AP)—A 15-year-old junior high school boy who police said went gunning for his school principal faced a murder charge today in the fatal shooting of a teacher.

Police said Billy Ray Prevatt also wounded two other male teachers yesterday when he went through the Maryland Park Junior High School firing a rifle. One of the teachers is in critical condition.

The boy had been expelled two months ago from a school in Raleigh, N. C., after threatening a teacher there.

The shootings came after a teacher had sent the boy to talk with the principal because he had not handed in a written assignment. The teacher who initiated the reprimand escaped unharmed, as did the principal, John Hrezo.

State Attorney Blair H. Smith ordered young Prevatt charged with murder, two counts of assault with intent to kill and two counts of assault with a deadly weapon. Prevatt was jailed in Upper Marlboro, Md., to await a preliminary hearing next Friday.

Fatally shot was Frazier Cameron, a 32-year-old widower from Westfield, N. J. Athletic coach Francis D. Wagner, 25, was wounded in the chest and his condition was listed as critical. Robert Hicks, 31, was wounded in the hand trying to disarm the boy.

Mrs. Hazel Buck received a master of arts degree; her daughter, Miss Mildred Joann Buck, a bachelor of arts degree; the Rev. Frank W. Buck and his brother, the Rev. Robert Charles Buck of Greenfield, Ind., both honorary doctor of divinity degrees.

Death Of Boy, 4, Eyed By Coroner

CLEVELAND (AP)—Dr. Samuel R. Gerber, Cuyahoga county coroner, said he would rule today on the cause of death of 4-year-old Mark Stephen Morrison, who died in a dentist's chair yesterday after being given nitrous oxide gas preparatory to having some teeth filled.

The boy was pronounced dead by Dr. Elliot C. Margies, an anesthesiologist who administered the gas in the office of Dr. Edward J. Green.

St. Philip's Church Sets Observance Of Rogation Sunday

St. Philip's Church will celebrate Rogation Sunday beginning at the 9 a. m. family service, when special prayers and intercessions for all those who labor on the land will be offered, asking God's blessing on the crops throughout the coming season.

The Rector will follow the annual tradition of Rogation observance in the Anglican Communion. The event is used to remind people of the dependence upon the land and the marvelous way in which God works with the husbandmen to bring forth "the fruits of the earth".

Such Rogation Sunday services as that which will be held in St. Philip's Church, with special emphasis on the farmer and his work, are very ancient in the Episcopal Church. They originated long before the time of the Reformation in France and spread from there to England, where they are still a part of Church of England calendars in rural areas.

The name "Rogation" is derived from the Latin word meaning "to ask" and is used to designate the supplicatory nature of the day.

The Rector wishes to remind all Episcopalians that the Rogation Days — Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week—are designated by the Book of Common Prayer as being "days of solemn supplication". Therefore, all the faithful of the church should especially remember in their prayers on those days the farmers and their work and ask God to bring forth the fruits of the Earth so that in due time we may enjoy them.

In observance of the Rogation Days, there will be special celebrations of The Holy Communion in St. Philip's Church on Monday, beginning at 7:30 a. m., and on Wednesday, beginning at 10 a. m.

Holy Communion To Be Celebrated At Trinity Lutheran

Holy Communion will be celebrated at both the 8:30 and 10:45 a. m. services in Trinity Lutheran Church on Sunday.

Student Pastor Ray E. Johnson will present the sermon, "Prayer Power", taken from John 16:23-24. The adult choir will present an anthem and lead the singing at the early service. At the late service, the youth choir will lead the congregation in singing "Crown Him With Many Crowns", "What A Friend We Have In Jesus" and "My Faith Looks Up To Thee."

Church Of Christ Sermon Will Deal With Absenteeism

The sermon topic announced for Sunday morning at the Church of Christ is "Church Absenteeism". In commenting on this lesson, evangelist D. E. Kinkade points out: "During the late part of World War II, the output of factories and industry in general was hindered because of 'absenteeism' on the part of many of the workers. Maximum production depended upon each worker faithfully doing his or her part."

"In the church of our Lord, Jesus Christ, maximum production depends upon each Christian realizing his responsibility and doing to the best of his ability what he is able to do. Part of each Christian's responsibility is to be faithful in attendance at all of the services of the church. 'Absenteeism' on the part of members increases the burden that others must bear and hinders the progress of the Lord's work."

"The writer of the Hebrew letter said, 'Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching' (Heb. 10:25)."

"The early Christians set the example for us by assembling upon the first day of the week (Acts 20:7). This they did to partake of the Lord's supper (Acts 20:7; 1 Cor. 11:23-24; Acts 2:42); to exhort and admonish one another; to give for the support of the Lord's work (1 Cor. 16:1-2); to praise God with the fruit of the lips (Col. 3:16; Eph. 5:19; Heb. 2:12); and to have fellowship with other Christians."

"Every Christian should be thankful for the great privilege of assembling with other Christians and guard this freedom with a great manifestation of zeal."

First EUB Church To Hear Sermon On 'Spiritual Glow'

"The Spiritual Glow" has been chosen by the Rev. O. F. Gibbs for his sermon subject Sunday morning in First Evangelical United Brethren Church at 9:30 a. m. praying of all Americans is needed to cut down the useless waste of life on our highways and airways, and waste of natural resources in soil, mines, streams and forest lands all across our beloved nation. Let us face the present now, that the future may not judge our generation to our shame and disgrace."

The choir will sing the anthem, "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes", by Treharne, Mrs. Clark Will directing. Mrs. Dick Robinson will sing the soprano solo part.

and the Bach "Toccata and Fugue in D Minor".

A film based upon Acts, chapter 7-9, on the Conversion of Saul, will be shown during the Sunday school Bible study hour. Have You Ever Seen A "Prayer Book"?

If not, you've missed one of the most important publications in the English language. The Book of Common Prayer of the Anglican Communion (of which the Episcopal Church in the United States is a part), is second only to the Holy Bible, probably the most widely printed and used book in the English language.

Records fail to show how many millions of copies of this unusual book have been printed and circulated since it was first issued by the Church of England in the sixteenth century. Sufficient to say that it has had a profound influence on the development of the English language as we use it today. The Prayer Book, in English and translated into many other tongues, is today the guide to worship for more than 40,000,000 Anglicans the world over.

It is called the Book of Common Prayer because we use it in "common", so that we may join together as participants in corporate worship—not as individuals, but as joint members in "the Body of Christ"—the Church.

The Book of Common Prayer is a thrilling document with a thrilling history. Learn more about it. Learn the great satisfaction of corporate worship by joining us in the worship of God in the Episcopal Church near you—soon!

You can learn more about the Book of Common Prayer by reading the interesting booklet "How We Got the Prayer Book". Send the coupon. It's free. No obligation.

THE CHURCH POINTS THE WAY

Thousands of columns have been published in American newspapers about Juvenile Delinquency. Investigations have been held in scores of cities, and many witnesses have been called in an effort to find the cause and the cure.

In all this sudden excitement little has been said about the lack of religion in the homes and hearts of these thousands of unfortunate youths. Far too much emphasis has been placed on inadequate play facilities, too little discipline, too few policemen, etc.

Juvenile Delinquency is primarily a moral and religious problem. Neither jail nor playground, as necessary as they are, will do much to foster love, goodwill, self-respect and charity in the heart of a person. The development of love and charity in the life of a youth needs constant day by day cultivation. But how can a parent properly train a child if that parent has had no religious or spiritual training or background and lives a selfish and faithless life? How can a parent teach a youth the fundamental spiritual values if that parent does not even attempt to live an exemplary life and does not admit his or her dependence upon God, our creator?

Down through the ages the Church has been the bulwark against crime, sin and evil. Those who would solve the problem of delinquency in young or old should seek the way of the Church, for those who need spiritual healing should seek spiritual treatment. The Church stands ready to help parent and youth alike.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

'UPGRADING' AND MORTGAGES

THE BUSINESS outlook is generally good for several years ahead and real estate prices are not likely to decline, is the belief of Charles G. Wright, chief economist of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

Housing demand now is chiefly based on "upgrading," and if income and employment remain high the building boom may continue for years, he claims.

The present boom in housing, it is disclosed, is made up 90 per cent of single-family house construction, whereas in the late 1920s, approximately 60 per cent of the family units built were single-family houses.

Another significant feature is the great shift from renting to home ownership. In 1930, about 46 per cent of all nonfarm dwelling units were occupied by their owners. Today 56 per cent of the houses are owner-occupied.

An upward shift in income and distribution of income has also produced a larger number of families seeking and able to incur debt. The expanded housing program has brought with it a larger mortgage debt, with payments and repayments becoming an enormous sum annually.

There is no question that mortgage debt today is high when compared with all previous levels. The amount of mortgage debt estimated to have been outstanding in 1929 was about $19 billion. At the end of 1955, it was nearly $89 billion.

As the present boom continues, the debt must continue to grow to meet the new needs it is serving. It is hoped that it can continue to grow without endangering its own stability or that of the economy as a whole.

RUSSIA'S RATE OF GAIN

DEBATE OVER how much the productive output of Soviet Russia is increasing continues. Some think Russia is going great guns while others suppose that any favorable statistics out of Moscow are mere communist boasts.

There are some calculations in the April issue of Lloyds Bank Review, London, which make it appear that the Russians are coming up fast. According to this appraisal, the Soviet Union's industrial output was 35 per cent of the United States in 1950 and is now about 50 per cent. The output of the U. S. gained 24 per cent and that of the Soviet Union 75 per cent during the five-year period.

Projecting this rate of gain into the future, there is some possibility that Russia might equal the U. S. in productive power by 1963.

Well, let it if it can. If Russia can produce enough to give its own and satellite peoples a standard of living comparable to America's, the red leaders will find it more difficult to prod their peoples into world conquest.

One supposes, too, that the rate of Soviet gains will soon level off. When the fleshpots of Russia begin to fill up, the people will turn soft with fat living. That, anyhow, has been the experience of every country that attained ample production of consumer goods on short hours of labor.

MONITORING A MENACE

THE NEWS that many weather bureaus in the U. S. will monitor the air for any radioactive fallout from the forthcoming nuclear tests in the Pacific is a chilly reminder of the perilous times.

The Atomic Energy Commission has made it clear that no fallout is expected outside of the 375,000 nautical square mile area in the Marshall Islands where the tests will take place. In fact some of the islands in that atoll group are outside the danger zone and inhabitants will not be evacuated unless something goes wrong.

But a nationwide network of weather and health monitoring stations will test the air to determine how much, if any, radioactivity comes this far.

There's undoubtedly nothing to worry about. But the fact that areas more than 5,000 miles away from the tests are included in the experiment cannot help but give one a slightly uncomfortable feeling.

It brings closer to home the ultimate horrors of an atomic war, to realize that the U. S. is somehow included in an experiment thousands of miles away in the Pacific.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Undoubtedly the most significant fact about Alger Hiss's lecture at Princeton is that Hiss said nothing that was interesting, startling or even important. He delivered a polite lecture on Geneva with some references to Yalta and added neither light nor heat to either conference. Whatever he knows about Yalta that has not been published, he kept to himself although this could have been an opportunity to make an invaluable contribution to history.

The reporters and photographers who went to Princeton to hear the intimate revelations of an ex-spy were fooled. There was an overtone of scholarship and a whimsical response to questions, but no revelations. They might just as well have stayed at home and watched some escapist drama on television.

What they should have noted was that the small Princeton society which gave Hiss rising plaudits at the end of his short speech has nothing to remember except that it did something extraordinary; it brought an ex-convict to Princeton to lecture not on crime but on history and international politics.

Perhaps some professor of sociology will one day invite Lucky Luciano to lecture on the gentle art of dope pushing. Certainly Lucky knows more about it than any academic soliloquist.

It could even happen some day that a professor in the department of international relations or a student society specializing in this field will invite Burgess and Maclean to come to the United States to lecture on highclass espionage and how not to get caught. Burgess might provide interesting overtones.

That is about all that the Hiss lecture at Princeton amounted to. It is part of a program to rehabilitate Alger Hiss. He naturally has a right to aspire to rehabilitation and it is understandable that his friends would want to assist him.

It is also understandable that he should believe that time will work in his favor and that a younger generation, like these boys at Princeton, will wonder what it was all about and not take the trouble to find out. Nobody will get college credits for finding out.

But when it comes to rehabilitation, Alger Hiss will be up against the fact that he has not told his story in public. Rehabilitation can only follow a public explanation of his extraordinary conduct. Alger Hiss went to prison not for espionage but for perjury.

In a word, after two trials, it was held by court and jury that he had not told the truth concerning his personal relations with a Soviet Russian espionage ring while he was in the State Department in an important position. That is the record that stands.

It is impossible to say that Hiss has paid his debt to society and ought never again to be molested or questioned. But has he paid his debt to society? The problem here is one of morals. Had Hiss been convicted of embezzlement, of burglary, of kidnapping, it would be possible to say that serving a period in prison pays one's debt to society. But Alger Hiss was convicted of perjury in relation to espionage. It would seem to me that the only truth concerning the espionage; otherwise the question will always arise to plague him as to whether he really was a spy.

It is a tough problem because we must take it for granted that Hiss does not believe that he will benefit by blandly announcing to the world that the Whittaker Chambers and others said is true and that he did act for Russia when he was employed to act for the United States.

Surely he must be ill-advised that silence about his case will achieve rehabilitation in public opinion. Yet morally there is nothing less that he can do, because the record stands and needs to be erased if he is to be accepted again as having a place in our society.

Perhaps he does not care; then why did he go to Princeton to deliver an address in his chosen field? Before Princeton, whoever is his agent in such matters tried other colleges which turned Hiss down. Obviously, Hiss does care and does seek rehabilitation. His task then is to humble himself, as one must do, before the truth, whatever he knows it to be.

When the party factions in the various states get through with each other, the hospital shortage in the nation may really be felt.

Many federal courts are reported to be overloaded with cases, but if one of them runs out of work it can always reverse the conviction of a communist.

There are a million more females in the United States than males. Uncle Sam will indeed be intrepid if he tries to control that surplus.

CHAPTER 14
THE MUSIC had started again and Doctor Harridan guided Val onto the dance floor. Her blue eyes smiled up at him.

"I'm sorry if I said anything to upset you this afternoon," he said presently. "I was tired and on edge, and we happened to get onto a subject which," he hesitated briefly, "I'd rather not talk about."

"I'd rather not talk about it either," she murmured. "Couldn't we all just forget it?"

"There are some things you can't forget, Miss Allison," he said quietly.

"Since I'm in mufti tonight, Doctor Harridan, couldn't it be Val?" He smiled. Then he added abruptly, in a horrified voice, "Gosh, I'm sorry. I trod on your toe."

There was a pause in which his large handsome face clouded over. "I'm sorry to bring up the subject again," he said. "I thought I'd begun to get over the hurt of Ellen's death until this trip."

"But there are some things in life everyone must forget," she said. "Please, Doctor Harridan, you must forget too." Her voice broke slightly. It was almost a plea.

He didn't answer that directly; he said, instead, "If it's to be Val off duty, my name is Bruce. You know, Val," he was obviously intending to change the subject, "can't tell you how much I'm looking forward to the idea of both of us working together at the hospital in Jamaica."

It was as though he'd picked the words from her brain. Her steps faltered, and again he trod on her toes, but this time she knew it had been her fault.

Then suddenly he grinned down at her. "I feel gay tonight. I'd like to whirl you around the floor in an old-fashioned waltz. I feel at last I've met someone who can understand me and whom I can understand. I mean," his glance was both intent and sincere, "that I've met someone whom I could really like—or love."

A hand tapped him on the back. "Excuse me, Doctor," Dirk was standing beside them smiling. They both stopped dancing. "Excuse you what?" Bruce demanded hoarsely.

Dirk laughed. "Excuse me nothing! But this is an Excuse-me dance, Doctor, or didn't you know?" His voice was mocking, almost insolently mocking.

"You're darn well not going to claim my partner," Bruce said roughly. "You claimed my partner once before and got away with it. This time I'm going to keep my partner, swine that you are."

Dirk hit him. He hit him quickly and unexpectedly and expertly. Bruce sprawled on the floor. The music stopped. But after an agitated motion from the purser, it started up again, too loudly.

Bruce got slowly to his feet, his large body towering over the slimmer man. "You want to fight?" he asked aggressively.

Dirk shrugged and smiled. "No, of course not. I apologize. Undoubtedly I was drunk." But the mocking note in his voice was plainly discernible as he added, "I really do apologize, Doctor. I'm sure you won't want to make an incident out of this regrettable affair."

Everyone seemed to accept the fact that Dirk had been drunk. The Captain shrugged and muttered that "some fellows couldn't hold their liquor," and added, "especially if they've been under the weather for a couple of days."

Val, of course, knew that Dirk hadn't been drunk. And for the life of her, she couldn't understand just why the attack had been made. Certainly Bruce's words had been offensive, but she felt he had been goaded on by the underlying mockery of Dirk's voice. And she knew too that much more lay behind the incident.

Almost immediately after the incident, Bruce took her arm and walked her out on the deck. "I should have knocked his block off, shouldn't I?" he said savagely. "I would have, but it would have embarrassed the Captain. He would have had to report the incident to the ship's owners, and it might have reflected on him."

Try, Stop Me

Wall Street banker took his wife to Paris where he closed a big bond deal. Final signing of the papers took longer than he had expected, so he called the hotel and told the French maid, "Please tell madame to go to bed and wait for me."

"Bien, monsieur," answered the maid, "but who shall I say called?"

Another new maid turned up at the Vanderbricks to help at a big dance. "From 7 to 8," Mrs. Vanderbrick instructed her, "you are to stand at the ballroom entrance and call the guests' names as they arrive."

"What jolly fun that will be," enthused the maid. "I know a couple of beauties!"

And a very social Mrs. Broadbeam told her new maid: "When we give a big party for the embassy set, you may have to help the butler upstairs."

"That will be all right," conceded the maid, "if he'll do the same for me. I may take a nip or two myself."

How Aspirin Works Is Still A Big Riddle

By HERMAN N. BURDESON, M.D.

I DON'T suppose many of you imagine there's anything very mysterious about an aspirin tablet. But there is.

Aspirin is one of our most widely used drugs. Every day thousands of Americans gulp an aspirin or two to cure headaches. Ten grains is usually enough, for a case of sniffles.

Pain Relievers

In fact, an estimated 15 tons of these pain relievers are used in the United States each day. There is no mystery about what it does.

We know that it kills pain safely and effectively and that it reduces fever quickly—even more quickly than antibiotics in some cases. However, we don't know how it does these things.

Recent Studies

Studies are under way right now at the University of Illinois, University of Michigan, Northwestern University and Purdue University to try to solve this mysterious riddle.

Scientists are even using radioactive-tagged aspirin and geiger counters to try to trace the path of aspirin through the bodies of rats.

Through these studies we hope to learn, among other things, whether aspirin relieves pain through action on the adrenal gland, the brain thalamus or the specific pain areas in the body.

Big Puzzle

One of the big puzzles is why aspirin will help bring the body temperature down to normal when a patient has a fever, yet does not affect normal temperature when taken for an ordinary headache.

Loss of Heat

Apparently, aspirin increases what we term "heat dissipation" in the case of a fever. It causes loss of heat from the body's surface, thus lowering the temperature. But how it causes this heat dissipation or why it works in this way only when necessary to lower a fever, is still a mystery.

Dr. Habib Features Talk At Junior Woman's Meet

Dr. Ahmed Taha Habib, a native of Egypt who is studying at Ohio State University, was the speaker Friday evening for the Circleville Junior Woman's Club meeting, held in the home of Mrs. Ray Friend of Dartmouth Dr.

Dr. Habib presented his talk on Egypt. He spoke of Egypt as having the first known civilization, yet being a part of the "Dark Continent".

He said that the country with a population of 22 million lives extensively on agriculture, with one third of the land area used for this purpose.

Dr. Habib said that in an effort to combat disease a health unit has been set up for each ten villages and a unit for each five villages which supplies clean clear water. These villages in 1950 were using oil lamps, but with the completion of a dam, now being built, every village in Egypt can be supplied with electricity.

The speaker, who will soon be returning to Cairo, Egypt, as an assistant professor of food chemistry at the capital's university, came to Ohio State in 1952.

When he arrived in New York, he told of being impressed by the rushing and hurrying of Americans.

Dr. Habib expressed the opinion that greater understanding between the countries could better be achieved by bringing Egyptians here than sending "Point 4 experts" to Egypt. He said, "We are your friends, we cannot live without friends, we expect to continue to be your friends".

He added that his country must depend on the United States for help and there must be mutual understanding of the hopes and aspirations of the people. He mentioned that the average income of a farm family is fifty-five cents per day. He stressed that his country would be prevented from becoming Communist by religion and ideology.

Donna Mitchell To Give Recital

Miss Donna Mitchell, pupil of Anna Merz, will appear in a piano recital Sunday at 7:30 p. m. in the Presbyterian Church.

Miss Mitchell, not only deft at the piano, is an accomplished violin player with the Circleville High School orchestra. She has also appeared as a soprano soloist at many civic, church and school activities.

After graduation, Miss Mitchell will enter the School of Music at Wooster College.

Roundtown Retrospect

By Mac Noggle

Much of the history of any region can be found, in concentrated form, in the ads of old newspapers.

By a careful reading of these, one can learn what were the latest fashions, what the people ate and drank, what were the necessities and luxuries of living, what were the latest remedies for ailments, what was modern in transportation and what was the last word in the methods of earning a living.

You can even determine how much the dollar would buy.

To illustrate what we mean—we would like to present one phase of our local history, which can be gleaned from the advertisements in a souvenir program of the C. A. C.'s first Fourth of July Celebration, in 1899. From this we are able to give you an almost-complete picture of the up-town merchants and professional men of Roundtown, back 57 years ago.

WE HAVEN'T the faintest hope that any youngsters or newcomers to Circleville will read this—to be honest, we believe it would be a waste of time. Names of our business men and where their stores were, more than fifty years ago, cannot possibly mean anything to these folks, we know, but surely, for just this once, they will bear with a few of us old-timers, while we reminisce about up-town Circleville as it was when we were very much younger.

As usual—in the back part of such publications are found the sedate "cards" of our professional men.

We find listed as physicians and surgeons the names of: A. W. Holman, Odd Fellows Building; D. V. Courtwright, East Main Street; H. C. Allen, 122 East Main St.; G. H. Colvill, East Main St.; George T. Rowe, 128 East Main Street.

There were three dentists' cards: G. S. & W. G. Corne, 119 East Main St.; E. J. Lilly, over Wittich's Confectionery and R. F. Lilly, in the McHenry Block, West Main Street.

Of the attorneys, who were listed, we find: Irvin F. Snyder, Odd Fellows Block; C. C. Chapplear, Masonic Temple; Charles Gerhardt, over Globe Clothing House, 109½ West Main St.; Charles Dresbach, Pythian Castle; Harry B. Weaver, Masonic Temple; T. J. Abernethy, Herrstein-Helweg Building; John Schleyer, Masonic Temple; E. A. Brown, Odd Fellows Building; C. A. Leist, 117½ West Main Street and Percy A. Walling, Pythian Castle.

Now for the stores and service establishments, we have tried to group them and to give you, as near as we can remember, their location.

Under the head of Queensware—we find: O. D. Mader, Odd Fellows Block; Charles Steinberger, 129 West Main Street; A. Hamilton, 110 West Main Street.

Plumbing and Supplies—McMullen and Murray, West Main Street; Crist and Lutz, 206-208 West Main Street; Crist Brothers, West Main Street; Hoffman, Brown and Wilson, 112 East Main Street.

Candy Stores—Busy Bee Candy Store, East Main Street; J. P. Antill, 132 West Main Street; T. G. Stevens, West Main Street; Wittich's, 105 West Main Street.

Photographers—Martin's Studio, over Cook's Book Store, West Main Street; Thornton's Studio, West Main Street, over Hamilton's Store.

Tailors—George G. Groom, 20 South Court Street, under Peck's Hall; G. "Christy" Bayer, 118 West Main Street.

Bakeries—Brownie Bakery, 114 West Main St.; Washington Bakery, 147 West Main Street; George B. Palm, 313 South Pickaway Street.

Eats and Drinks—James Baldwin Bowling Alley, North Court Street; J. W. Lamparter, 110 South Court Street; Z. Pickens and Son, 116-120 South Court Street; Sam Fullen, "The Senate", 136 South Court Street; Mike A. Ryan, Corner Court and Franklin Sts.; C. R. Goldfriedrick, Corner Pickaway and Mound Sts.; Wm. H. Dotter, Corner Main and Scioto Sts.; Kentucky Liquor House, Max Seyfert, 108 West Main Street.

Grocers—S. E. Hosler—141 West Main Street; W. Wolf & Son, Corner Mound and Pickaway Sts.; P. M. Pressler, Corner Court and High Sts.; J. Merz, Corner Pickaway and Watt Sts.; C. E. Stock-len, 233 North Court St.; Duffy Brothers, 120 West Main Street; Jerome Sapp, Pythian Castle; Denman Brothers, East Main St.; E. S. Neuding, 215 East Main St.; N. A. Warner, Corner Watt & Court Sts.; J. H. Helwage, 239 East Main Street; James J. Egan, 215 West Main Street; Langdon Grocery, 159 West Main Street; M. A. BEING VEEP HAZARDOUS JOB?

More U. S. Vice Presidents Than Presidents Have Succumbed in Office of Natural Causes

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
Central Press Association
Correspondent

WASHINGTON—When a President who has had a heart attack seeks re-election, the man who runs with him—and his health—become of paramount concern to the nation.

For only a heart beat separates the vice president from the occupant of the White House.

Yet, strangely enough, American history reveals that the office of vice president has proven more hazardous than that of President.

Seven vice presidents have died in office of natural causes, compared to four Chief Executives. Three other Presidents have also died in office, but by violent means, at the hands of assassins.

The vice presidents who died while serving were George Clinton, Elbridge Gerry, William R. King, Henry Wilson, Thomas A. Hendricks, Garret A. Hobart and John S. Sherman.

The four Presidents who died of natural causes were William Henry Harrison, Zachary Taylor, Warren G. Harding and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

ONE PRESIDENT, James Madison, was singularly unfortunate in his vice presidents. Both died during his eight-year tenure in office, Clinton in 1812 and Gerry in 1814.

President Franklin Pierce saw his Vice President King succumb in 1853 only six weeks after they were inaugurated. President Ulysses S. Grant served his second term without a vice president. Wilson died in 1875.

Hendricks was vice president during President Grover Cleveland's first term. He served only 8½ months. Hobart died during the first term of President William McKinley, in 1899. Less than two years later, McKinley succumbed to an assassin's bullet and his second vice president, Theodore Roosevelt, succeeded him.

Thomas R. Marshall, vice president under Woodrow Wilson, once remarked that he was the "greatest listener since the Sphinx sat itself down in the Libyan desert."

ALTHOUGH the Constitution makes the vice president "the president of the Senate" and provides no other tasks for him, some holders of this office have done a good deal of speechmaking—outside the Senate—and have headed various governmental bodies, the latter at the request of the Chief Executive.

Never in American history have both a President and vice president died in office nor has a President ever succumbed while the second highest office was vacant.

However, Congress has taken cognizance of the possibility that this could occur. In that event, the speaker of the House of Representatives would become President.

Congressman Sam Rayburn of Texas is the present House speaker. He is 74 years old. When the next President takes the oath of office Jan. 21, 1957, either he or Congressman Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, will probably be speaker. Rayburn will be 75 on Jan. 6. Martin will be 72.

Is the vice presidency a more killing job than that of President? Few people would think so. Yet history records the fact that the second highest office has proven more hazardous than the presidency.

Rep. Joseph Martin

Rep. Sam Rayburn

Sherman was the last vice president to die in office. Inaugurated with William Howard Taft in 1909, he passed away Oct. 30, 1912.

The vice president has only two official duties to perform. He is the presiding officer of the Senate and votes in case of a tie. Whenever he tires of wielding the gavel, he invites one of the senators to take over for him.

Thomas R. Marshall, vice president under Woodrow Wilson, once remarked that he was the "greatest listener since the Sphinx sat itself down in the Libyan desert."

School Notes

CIRCLEVILLE HIGH

Journalism is another one of the many subjects offered to the students of Circleville High School. The opportunities in the journalism field are numerous.

Though the study of journalism, students improve their writings, put the English they have learned to use, and learn to be clear thinkers.

It also prepares them for work on the school paper, teaches them to criticize, helps them meet people through interviews. Assignments must be done quickly and on time.

One main advantage of journalism is creating a desire to go on in the field of reporting.

Students learn to express themselves in the editorials they write. Sometimes too, they rewrite articles, giving their own interpretation of current affairs.

Journalism classes enjoy quite a few activities each year. Students write articles printed in the newspaper; they visit some printing operation, such as the newspaper office; and they study many different newspapers.

The Circleville Herald has cooperated in publishing the better articles in the "School Notes" column.

Another of the more important subjects CHS offers to the students is public speaking. The advantages of good speech are very obvious. In addition to teaching boys and girls to speak publicly, the students develop a better quality in their voices. Voices gain volume, and students learn the correct pronunciation of words.

Besides learning to make speeches, the students do other types of things in the classroom. They devote the beginning of the year to informal speeches, conversations, interviews, selecting talks, and discussions. They learn to debate; the method of parliamentary procedure, which they may need if they belong to any club or group; oral reading; fundamentals of dramatic work; radio and television work.

They also use the tape recorder. This is a sure way of learning their faults and then noting the improvements they make.

Almost without exception the speech students agree that they are much at ease in front of others, whether they are delivering a formal speech, stating a motion at a business meeting, or merely having all eyes fixed on them when walking across a room.

They have developed "eye contact" and are much less nervous in a speaking situation.

The immediate aim of science as taught at CHS is to present to the pupil in an orderly and appealing way the truths, principles, and laws necessary to give him an understanding and appreciation of his environment.

A person needs science to help him adjust to this new scientific world. Science is also needed to make progress, especially in raising the standard of living, and in making life easier in this world.

In high school science, the student not only learns facts from texts, but also learns through demonstrations. Supplemental and group projects also broaden the scope and interest in the course.

Our world at peace or at war is highly technical. We need science to understand what is being done and also to learn better ways of doing things.

Biology, the science of life, includes a knowledge of plants and animals, including man.

It deals with the physical makeup of all living things, the principles which govern life, and the relation of living things to their surroundings and to each other. Many CHS students find it one of their favorite studies.

Biology has many purposes. We first direct our study in it to disease, its causes, treatment and prevention. By studying our own bodies, we can maintain good health through proper living habits.

Other phases of biology concern the improvement of our relationship with other living things. We depend directly on plants and animals for food, clothing, shelter, and many other necessities of life.

By controlling and improving the plants and animals which supply these necessities, we gain a tremendous advantage in the world of life.

Advantages of field trips and laboratory work add to the interest of this course.

Biology gives the student a great advantage in college if he pursues a scientific course. If the student does not go to college his biology course will be an advantage in furnishing necessary practical knowledge of plants and animals.

Mike, The Parrot, Now 'Michelle'

CHICAGO (U.P.)—Mike, a parrot, has been at the Anti-Cruelty Society's quarters 15 years.

The bird has been a favorite of many visiting school kids and has acquired a vocabulary of more than 20 words.

But nothing the feathered favorite has said caused more startled reaction than one bit of action today.

Mike laid an egg. And the society changed the parrot's name to Michelle.

Bosox Pilot Proven Correct In Prediction

New Reserve Strength Pays Off As Higgins' Men Win 4 Out Of 5

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Put down Manager Mike Higgins of the Boston Red Sox as one of the better training camp prophets.

"It's hopeless to try to win without plenty of good reserves these days," he said in Sarasota, Fla., last February. "And that's why we'll be a better club this year. No matter how I use Mickey Vernon and Norm Zaichuk around first base, we will be better off, because one or the other always will be on the bench rested and ready to go to bat. And I feel certain a couple of boys I had at Louisville are ready to help us, Don Buddin, a shortstop, and Frank Malzone at third."

His prophecy came true Friday as the Red Sox won their fourth game in five starts, beating Detroit 6-4 with a home run by Zaichuk for the first run and three hits by Buddin, including a two-run single that put the Sox ahead to stay in the fourth inning.

Vernon didn't play but he's been hitting .302 with a couple of important homers and nine runs batted in. Malzone is hitting only .250, but he homered and fielded brilliantly in Thursday's game.

The victory left Boston in fourth place, a distinct improvement over its 9-12 record a year ago today.

The New York Yankees held first place by beating Kansas City 10-6 with a four-run eighth inning. The Chicago White Sox pulled into a percentage tie for first with the Yanks as Dick Donovan turned back Washington 5-2, but they trail by a game on a won and lost basis. The two clubs clash in a doubleheader Sunday in Yankee Stadium.

Baltimore made the most of three hits and erratic pitching and catching by Cleveland to nip the Tribe 4-3 and thereby crawl out of the American League cellar. Detroit is the new occupant.

Milwaukee and St. Louis remained in a virtual tie for the National League lead, but Brooklyn dropped out, as the Braves nipped the New York Giants 3-2 in 10 innings and the Dodgers handed the Cardinals five gift runs in one inning for a 10-3 St. Louis victory.

Art Fowler pitched Cincinnati to a 4-3 victory over Pittsburgh despite Frank Thomas's seventh home run of the campaign, good for two runs. But a two-run homer by Chicago's Ernie Banks was enough to hand Bob Roberts of Philadelphia his first defeat of the season. Bob Rush outpitched the Philly ace 2-1.

Bobby Thomson, Del Crandall, Johnny Logan and Eddie Mathews shared the starring roles for the Braves. With the Braves trailing 2-1 in the last of the ninth, Thomson singled, moved around on a sacrifice and infield out then romped home as Crandall drove out a double on a 3-2 pitch. Mathews singled home Logan with the winning run in the 10th after the shortstop singled and moved to second on a passed ball.

Dave Jolly, pitching the 10th in relief of Lew Burdette, pitched up the win while Johnny Antonelli was the loser. He had doubled and scored the run that put the Giants ahead at 2-1 in the eighth.

The Dodgers threw the ball all over Busch Stadium in St. Louis in the sixth inning as the Cards came up with seven runs on only four hits. Wild throws by veteran shortstop PeeWee Reese and rookie pitcher Chuck Templeton, a wild pitch by relief pitcher Ed Peabuck and a balk by Sandy Koufax, third Dodger chucker of the inning, made it easy for the Cardinals. Rip Repulski had a solo homer for the winners.

Fowler gave up only six hits in winning his second game for the Redlegs, who had Ted Kluszewski back in the lineup after a week's rest on the bench. Klu went 0 for 4, however, and Roy McMillan drove in the winning runs with a two-run single.

Rush ended a 14-game personal losing streak to Philadelphia and also snapped a seven-game skid of defeats for the Cubs.

City Man's Brother Sets Torrid Pace As Pirate Hurler
Bob Friend, brother of Cincinnati's Ray Friend, is setting a torrid pace in the National League while twirling for the usually cellar-dwelling Pittsburgh Pirates.

Last year, although he had one of the best earned run averages, his won-lost record did not show up as well as it should have. The Pirates simply could not hit for him.

This year, the Smoky City slugger have banged out the necessary bingles. As a matter of fact, Friend and the Pirates snapped a six-game winning streak of the Cincinnati Reds.

Tug Wilson 'Pleased' As OSU Accepts Penalty Gracefully

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, Western Conference commissioner, is "pleased and grateful" for what he termed Ohio State University's gentlemanly and dignified acceptance of the one-year probation slapped on the university a week ago.

Wilson, who imposed the penalty for infractions of the athletic code, addressed some 1,000 coaches Friday night on the campus at a banquet sponsored by the athletic department as part of its silver anniversary football clinic. Some mention was made of the probation, in quiet vein, by several speakers including Wilson, President Howard Bevis and Coach Woody Hayes who had invited the commissioner to address the group.

All the university officials rose to shake hands with Wilson as he arrived a bit late at the speakers' table, but all concerned were slightly twisted grins. The invitation to Wilson was extended several weeks ago and reiterated after the probation was ordered.

Hayes departed for his weekly television show before Wilson spoke, taking clinic speakers Bud Wilkison of Oklahoma and Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech with him. Accusations that Hayes had given money or made small loans to his players led to the probation, and the Buck mentor got the evening's big laugh as he tag-lined:

"I'm changing sponsors on my television show this year. And I'd like to have you know my new one is the ———— Loan Co."

Wilson confined most of his remarks to the Olympics next winter in Australia.

Following the dinner he said he was "pleased and grateful for the university's gentlemanly and dignified acceptance of the penalty."

The Ohio High School Football Coaches Assn., in annual session, named Bill Kidd of New Philadelphia as president. Mel Knowlton of Alliance, 1954 coach of the year, was named first vice president, and Chuck Thackara of Hamilton third vice president.

The coaches awarded trophies to Knowlton, coach of the northern all-stars last August at Mansfield, and his assistants, Herb Redding of Gibsonburg, Seraph Pope of Lima, and Ralph Robinette of Youngstown Rayen, and to the southern staff of Larry Peterson of Lancaster, Paul Keltner of Cambridge, Howie Thomas of Cincinnati Hughes, and Marv McCollum of Seven Mile.

The clinic winds up today with the Ohio State gridders battling each other in a full-length game in the stadium, with 10,000 fans due to be on hand.

The high school coaches awarded lifetime honorary memberships to nine men, including Sky Wharton of Coshocton, Doyt Perry of Bowling Green State U., and Pete Howison of Marion.

Directors and alternates from 12 of the 16 coaching regions were also elected. They included:

Cincy Reds Enjoying Air In 3rd Place

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Redlegs are breathing the atmosphere of third place on the National League ladder today.

The Reds, in last place a week ago, edged past the Pittsburgh Pirates last night 4-3, but the vaunted Red hitters fared badly.

It was men like shortstop Roy McMillan who held the key to the Redleg scoring.

McMillan's shrewdly placed bunt in the fifth inning helped set up the first two Redleg runs.

McMillan also rapped out a single in the sixth inning that brought Wally Post and Ray Jablonski home with the tying and winning runs.

The wiry Cincinnati shortstop is hitting at a .340 clip this season, with 18 pokes in 53 times at bat.

But Redleg Manager Birdie Tebbetts saves his greatest praise for McMillan's work in the field. "McMillan is one of the finest defensive shortstops I've seen in the last 20 years," the manager said.

Those Redleg muscle men, Gus Bell, Jablonski and Ted Kluszewski, failed to get a hit last night.

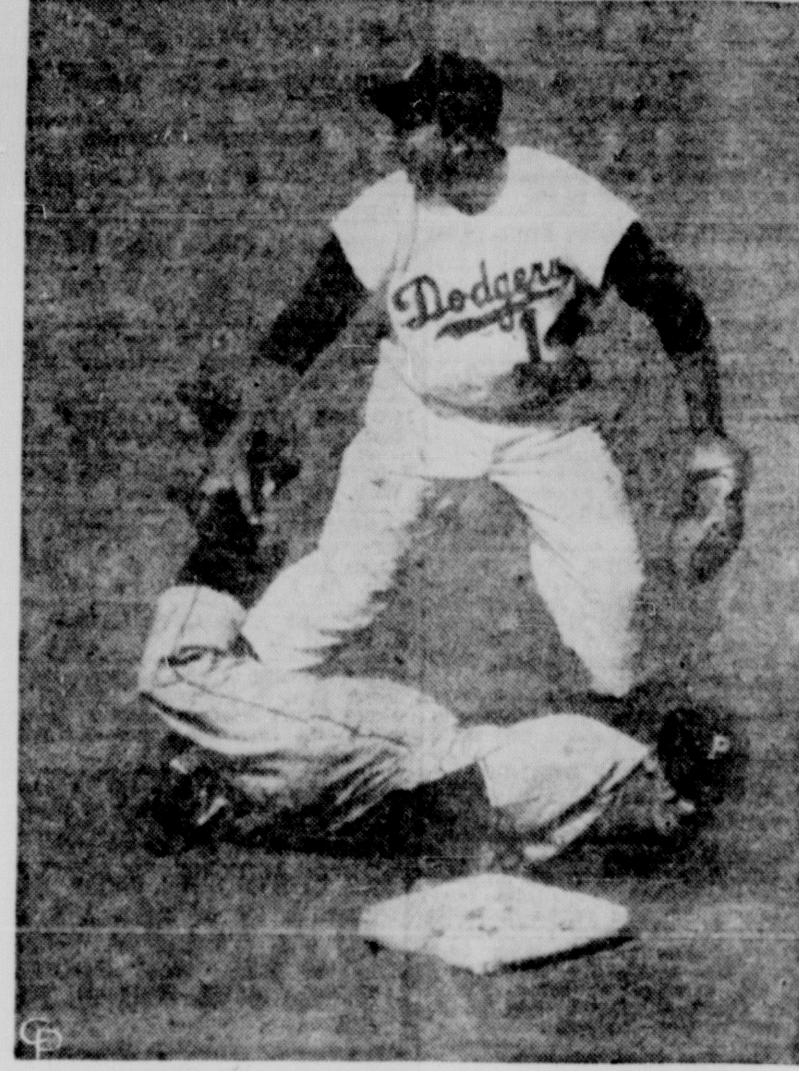

The game set the Redlegs back on the winning track after Pittsburgh cut off their win streak at six straight on Thursday.

Herb Score Very Wild In Indian Defeat

BALTIMORE (AP)—Wildier than the stormy night, Herb Score, the Cleveland Indians' young southpaw, blew a 4-3 decision to the Baltimore Orioles last night.

A strong wind behind him was supposed to help his fast ball, but Score walked the first two batters. Then two pitches got past catcher Hal Naragon, and Baltimore led 2-0 without a hit.

Score set the Orioles down in order in the second. But in the third he walked the Baltimore pitcher, Jim Wilson, and Bobby Adams singled through short and Chuck Diering laid down a bunt to load the bases.

Score uncorked a wild pitch to let one run in, and walked Dave Philley to load the bases again. Gus Triandos smashed a grounder toward left, and although Al Rosen made a diving stop he couldn't make a throw and another run was in.

Rosen came up with the ball and made a stab at Diering, running from second to third. Rosen was ejected for arguing too strongly that Diering stepped out of the base path.

Manager Al Lopez sent in Rudy Regalado to replace Rosen and Cal McLish to relieve Score. McLish retired the side on a pop fly and a double play. McLish, Sal Maglie and Ray Narleski held the Orioles hitless after Score left.

The Indians scored three runs in the fourth on a hit batsman, singles by Chico Carrasquel and

Times Square On Program At Fayette Sulky Matinee

WASHINGTON, C. H. — Times Square, Ohio's Harness Horse of the Year in 1955, will be exhibited by owner Eddie Kirk as a feature of the annual Lions Club matinee harness racing program at the Fayette County fairgrounds here Sunday. Post time for the first of eight races is 1:30 p. m.

Winner of the $75,000 American Pacing Classic at Hollywood Park last fall, Times Square has wintered in fine form at the local track where he is being prepared for a campaign which will see him tackle the nation's toughest in a series of major stakes from coast to coast. His exhibition appearance will be one of the few opportunities for Ohio fans to see him this year.

All proceeds from the matinee program will go to the Lions Club sight and welfare funds which have benefitted substantially since the annual matinee show was instituted four years ago.

Horses slated to appear in action are those trotters and pacers which wintered at the local track. Standardbreds from nearby training centers also will race.

General chairman for the matinee is Kirk.

The only outside experts called upon to aid in the project are for the sound system and the presiding judge. The club has a licensed presiding judge, John Sagar, in its ranks, but he'll be serving as the starter in Paul Young's starting gate. This is the same gate that was used at Magnolia Park in New Orleans until last week when that race meeting closed.

Complete plans have been made to handle a large crowd. The crew which must clean out the winter accumulation of dirt from the grandstand and mow the lawn around it already is at work.

The only admission charge will be for adults. All children under high school age will be admitted free and all grandstand seats are free. The box seats will go on sale Sunday prior to the racing and will be on a "first come first served" basis.

This being the fourth annual

Scioto Beats Iberia 7 To 4 On Friday In District Tourney

Scioto Township advanced a notch in the District Class B baseball tournament in Columbus by beating Iberia 7 to 4 Friday. The game had been postponed from Thursday because of wet grounds.

The Buffaloes will meet Pleasant Township Monday at 4 p. m. The game is set for Gowdy Diamond No. 17 in Columbus.

Pickaway County's other entry in Class B play, Ashville, was defeated in the opening round. The Broncos took it on the chin from Granville 13 to 1.

Scioto and Ashville will meet soon to decide the winner of the Pickaway County title. However, this will have to wait until Scioto finishes playing in the district tournament.

Scioto's Del Neff struck out seven and got a homer and a double. He gave up five hits. Scioto batted out nine safeties.

CLEVELAND INDIANS, not noted for speed and daring on the base paths, have a new look this season. It is illustrated above in the sixth inning of the Cleveland home opener in the Stadium, in which the Tribe defeated the Detroit Tigers, 3-1. Newly-acquired shortstop Chico Carrasquel (17) stretches a single into a double on a slow roller into left field in the sixth inning, then scores on Catcher Jim Hegan's hit. Making the stab is Second Baseman Reno Bertoia. (International)

This Is What District Vets Want To Know

(Veterans who have a question of interest to ex-servicemen should pass it along to Pickaway County Veterans Service Officer Jim Shea. His offices are in the basement of the courthouse at Circleville.)

Q—I want a G I business loan to be insured, rather than guaranteed by the VA. What is the maximum rate of interest on insured non-real estate loans?
A—The interest may not exceed a 3 percent discount rate, or an equivalent simple interest rate of 5.7 percent a year.

Q—If I move to Oregon because "I like it out there," can I get another G I loan after I sell my G I house here?
A—No. "I like it out there" does not fall in the class which allows the VA to exclude your previous G I loan.

Q—I would like to go to Europe and study cooking at one of the "world famous" restaurants, possibly in France. Can this be arranged?
A—No, it cannot. Foreign education opportunities are limited to colleges and universities for the purposes outlined in Public Law 550.

Q—I was severely wounded during combat in Korea. Is there a law other than Public Law 550 under which I may train as a disabled veteran?
A—Yes, there is. Public Law 894 provides training for handicapped veterans of the Korean conflict, based on the following:

1—If they suffered a service-connected disability in active service on or after Jan. 31, 1950, and on or before Jan. 31, 1955, which would entitle them to compensation.

2—If they were discharged or released under conditions other than dishonorable.

3—If the Veterans Administration determines they need vocational training to overcome their handicap.

All three of the above conditions must be met in order to be eligible for training under Public Law 894.

Q—May I reinstate my lapsed term national service life insurance policy?
A—Lapsed term policies may be reinstated before the end of the term period by meeting VA health requirements and by paying two monthly premiums.

Q—How about expired term national service life insurance?
A—Expired insurance cannot be reinstated.

OSU Alumni Aide Gets Full Backing

COLUMBUS (AP)—Jack Fullen, secretary of the Ohio State University Alumni Assn., was given a vote of confidence yesterday by the group's directors.

Fullen, who will be 56 Tuesday,

contributed some of the information used in a national sports magazine last October. The article led to an investigation of Ohio State by the Big Ten Conference and the school's subsequent one-year probation for infractions of the athletic code.

British Hint Frogman Held By Russians

LONDON (AP)—London newspapers speculated Friday that a missing British Frogman may have been caught by Russian sailors while engaged in underwater spying on the cruiser which brought "B and K" to London.

The Daily Sketch quoted an unnamed royal navy officer as saying the diver, Cmdr. Lionel Crabb, may have been a prisoner on the Ordzhonikidze when it sailed off last week with Soviet Premier Bulganin and Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev.

Crabb, 49, disappeared April 19. That was the day after the cruiser arrived in Portsmouth harbor with the barnstorming Kremlin chiefs.

The Admiralty announced last week that Crabb was "missing and presumed drowned" on a secret underwater experiment off Portsmouth, but his body has not been found.

The Admiralty confirmed it had hired Crabb, a retired member of the naval service, but declined to say what kind of work he was doing.

The Daily Telegraph suggested that Crabb, who had been working as a skin diver with foot fins and an oxygen tank, was "possibly checking on the Asdic apparatus underneath the Russian cruiser." Asdic is a sound system for detecting submarines.

The Telegraph said Crabb also visited Portsmouth six months ago when two Russian cruisers and four destroyers were there.

Buck Baseballers Leading Big Ten

CHICAGO (AP)—Ohio State's defending champions remained the only unbeaten team in the Big Ten baseball race as Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana all suffered initial losses yesterday.

Galen Cisco pitched and batted the Buckeyes into undisputed possession of first place as the champions walloped Indiana, 7-1.

Illinois suffered its first loss by losing a 10-inning 3-2 decision to Minnesota; Michigan State went down to beat Wisconsin, 11-6; Michigan edged Northwestern, 3-2, and Iowa shoved Purdue into the cellar, 2-1.

Ohio Grid Pilots Slated For Clinic

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio's high school football coaches, some 800 of them, converged here today for Ohio State University's annual grid clinic.

The mentors opened the three-day silver anniversary festivities last night with the annual north-south all-star game the big topic of conversation.

Jimmy Robinson of Canton Lehman, who will direct the annual all-senior tilt and clinic in Canton the week of Aug. 12, told the board of directors of the Ohio High School Football Coaches Assn. that 8,000 tickets had been sold for the Aug. 17 contest and that he looked for the biggest attendance in history.

Finsterwald Clings To Tournament Tie

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Dow Finsterwald and Peter Thomson, a couple of golf's winning sophomores, held the 36-hole lead in the $25,000 Colonial National Invitation Tournament today because Ben Hogan lost his touch.

While Finsterwald, the little man

from Athens, Ohio, and Thomson, 26, who already holds two British Open championships, were taking 2-over-par 73 for 141 yesterday, Hogan was shooting one of his finest games from tee to carpet only to miss birdie putts on 14 greens. Hogan, the man who has won four National Open and four Colonial championships, wound up with a similar score but was a stroke back.

Finals Coming Up In Women's Test

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—Veteran Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore and golf newcomer Wanda Sanchez of Baton Rouge, La., faced each other here today for the 41st Southern Women's Amateur title.

Miss Downey who has been playing tournament golf for years, is a stocky 30-year-old star with long drive and precision putting.

Miss Sanchez, playing in this event for the first time, also is a gal with long drives. The weak part of her game is her putting. She is 26, tall and timid.

The match was regarded as a tossup as the two aces started their 36-hole title test over the 6,312-yard par 74 Cascades Course.

Design For Airpower

(Editor's Note: This column is furnished as a public service, by the Office of Information Services, Air Research and Development Command, U. S. Air Force.)

Cool Heads, Hot Clouds
A BLINDING FLASH... a thundering blast... a boiling cloud mushrooming skywards... another atomic test is over. Minutes after the fearful cloud is born, Air Force pilots re on its heels, probing its edges, and dipping into it. Planes operated by ARDC's Special Weapons Center track the atomic cloud and send out warnings if it changes course. Sometimes, due to wind shifts the cloud direction may be completely reversed. Other planes skim the cloud or streak through it, collecting samples for scientific purposes. Many precautions are taken to protect the dogged cloud-chasers and to make sure that they aren't exposed to too much radiation. After return, crewmen and planes alike are washed down to remove all traces of residue. Pilots of the more heavily exposed sampling planes may not even climb out. They are lifted out with a forklift on wooden platform so they won't touch the outside of the aircraft. It takes cool heads to play with hot clouds, but the most important result achieved is the knowledge that men can fly around and even in atomic clouds without undue risk. They have brought home dramatic proof that atomic clouds

Missourian Finds Ohio Girl's Effects

LEBANON, Mo. (P)—The discovery of abandoned clothing and other items including identification papers near here touched off a search today for Miss Frances Kaye Fea, a 19-year-old Oxford, Ohio, girl. The clothing, personal papers, a handbag, two billfolds, purse and a portable radio were found on a dead end country road about three miles west of this south-central Missouri city yesterday afternoon by Bernard Meeth, a farmer. LaCade County Sheriff Neil Brown said a call to Ward Williams of the Procter and Gamble Corp. in Cincinnati verified information in the identification papers that a Miss Fea was employed there. Brown said Williams told him that Miss Fea supposedly boarded a bus in Cincinnati late Wednesday en route to Los Angeles in connection with her work. Brown said a thorough search of the area where the clothing and papers were found would be made. He also said authorities would attempt to establish if Miss Fea had actually boarded the bus and when she was last seen.

About 2,500,000 people now live in mobile homes. This house trailer population is enough to make it the third largest U. S. city, out-ranked only by New York and Chicago.

To Bolster Teaching Force 3-Point Program Offered

Editor's Note: Following is the last in a pair of articles dealing with the acute shortage of teachers in Ohio's public school system.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (P)—The state department of education has a three-point program designed to bolster Ohio's teaching force. The department knows Ohio will need 8,500 teachers next year. It knows, too, that the state has a potential supply of only 6,700. What then, is being done to ease the expected shortage of approximately 1,800 teachers next year? The department says it plans to cope with the problem through certification, scholarship and recruitment programs. Along the lines of certification, the department has opened the door to the teaching field to any person holding a bachelor of arts or science degree. Such a person, by taking four prescribed courses in a 12-week summer session, may be granted a temporary certificate for teaching on the elementary level. The standard certificate is issued when 30 semester hours have been completed, this coming at the rate of six semester hours of additional training each year until the total has been reached. Harold J. Bowers, director of teacher training, says since 1950, this program has provided Ohio with from 100 to 300 teachers a year. Most of these teachers, Bowers said, are housewives who hold college degrees which did not include preparation for teaching. "These housewives volunteered to take the program in the interest of serving the schools in their community," Bowers said. The department also is interested in drawing into the teaching field those persons who hold valid or expired teaching certificates. Approximately one-third of those prepared to teach never do so. "If these persons were to return to the classroom there would be an ample supply of teachers and possibly a surplus," Bowers contends. Expired certificates may be renewed by completion of a six semester hour refresher course. Currently, almost 1,000 teachers a year return to teaching after completing the refresher course. Bowers said superintendents are being urged to contact persons who can be persuaded to return to teaching under these conditions. Each year, Ohio is certifying more and more teachers from other states. In 1955, more than 2,900 from out-of-state were certified but fewer than one-half actually were employed. "If the preparation of these applicants is substantially equivalent to that required in Ohio colleges, the standard provisional certificate is issued. If only minor deficiencies exist, a temporary certificate is issued," Bowers said.

Trainee Head For Guard Unit Stresses Preparedness Need

"The better trained a soldier, the better are his chances for survival." This statement was made today by Lt. Robert Shaw, in charge of training for the Third Battalion, 166th Regimental Combat Team, Ohio National Guard. He urged young men of Circleville to enlist in their local Guard unit. Shaw said: "While we all hope for lasting peace, we must remain prepared and train our young citizen-soldiers to assure a strong and ready reserve to back up our active Army. "Therefore, as Americans we are dedicated to keeping our country free from enemy aggression. And also to keep our soldiers so well trained that when they enter combat, they are assured that they have had the best training possible and will be able to take care of themselves. This being so, the more training a young man can get, the better are his chances on the battlefield." SHAW POINTED out that every American man between the ages of 18½ and 28 has a military obligation to his country. Shaw said: "This obligation is to enlist in a reserve organization, learn all he can about military life and the fundamentals of military operation. "It behooves all of us therefore, to remain in a well trained status whereby we will be better able to protect our families and country, if that time must come." The fundamental principles of the Red Cross were laid down in a conference in Geneva, Switzerland, in 1863.

Women To Elect Presidents, Woman GOPster Convinced

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

From now on it's the women who will elect the presidents, says a brisk young woman who is chairman of the 1956 election campaign committee of the Women's National Republican Club. Jacqueline Gutwillig first became sold on the importance of public service during the war, when she was in Europe as a lieutenant colonel with the Department of Psychological Warfare, attached to Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters. Her husband, meanwhile, was a major in the Air Force, stationed in India. Jacqueline puts in a full working day five days a week at the club headquarters in New York, cooperating with the party's local, state and national committees and contacting all national women's organizations urging them to get their members out to register and vote. "In the last presidential election, 52 per cent of the total voters were women," says she. "In the country there is a potential of two million more women voters than men. That's a big margin, and a big responsibility."
